The following is the text of the Presidential message to be delivered at Henry Levitt Arena Saturday, November 28, 1970. The message will be delivered by Wayne Woodrow Hayes, head football coach of Ohio State University. Coach Hayes will participate in the program as President Nixon's personal representative.

THE WHITE HOUSE

Washington

November 28, 1970

Along with countless other compassionate Americans, Mrs. Nixon and I join in spirit with those who are participating in the Night of Stars benefit for the survivors of the tragic Wichita State and Marshall University air crashes. These dreadful misfortunes have profoundly touched the lives of men and women all across this land.

The Nixon Family fully shares the widespread concern for those who grieve the loss of their loved ones. It is gratifying to us that so many of you have come to their assistance at this difficult time. We send our best wishes for the complete success of this heartwarming response to their needs.
