GOP Already Out Front with Tough Proposal:
Republicans Hope for Bipartisanship to Reduce Safety Deficit

OLATHE, KANSAS -- Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole, traveling today in Kansas, issued the following statement regarding the President's announcement of anti-crime legislation:

"I am pleased that President Clinton has decided to follow the Republican lead in recognizing the need to reduce the nation's safety deficit.

"Last week, Congressional Republicans unveiled a tough, comprehensive anti-crime package -- one that would put thousands of more police on the streets, build additional prison space so that hardened criminals remain behind bars, establish federal safe school districts, crack down on gang violence, and stem the flow of illegal immigration. And, unlike previous anti-crime proposals, the Republican plan is paid for, through offsetting spending cuts in other programs.

"I am particularly pleased that the President has embraced many of the elements of the Republican approach to safer schools and the hiring of additional police officers. But's let not forget: if we put more police on the streets, making more arrests, we will need additional prison space as well.

"In the weeks ahead, Republicans hope to work with President Clinton and with Congressional Democrats to make our country safer and more secure for all our citizens. No doubt about it, restoring order to the streets of America must be a top priority of government."
