RE: Virginia Events

*The first event is a fundraising breakfast for Congressman Tom Bliley. A crowd of 400-500 is anticipated, including Governor-Elect George Allen and A.G.-elect Jim Gilmore.

*The same message will work at both events. Attached talking points are similar to those you've been delivering this month...with some local color worked in.

*Other thoughts you may want to work in at the events.

*Congressman Bliley is Ranking Republican on the Health Subcommittee of the Energy and Commerce Committee...he's very active in the health care debate.

*Bob Goodlatte is one of the outstanding Republican freshmen who have made a big difference in Washington...They have helped to lead the battle to reform Congress and to cut spending. As a member of the Judiciary Committee, he is on the front lines of the war against crime.

*Former Congressman Butler will be at the Goodlatte event. He wrote to you recently about his son, Henry, who lost a Congressional seat last year, and is now a law professor at K.U.

MEMORANDUM

TO: SENATOR DOLE
FR: JIM DORNAN
RE: BACKGROUND FOR YOUR TRIP TO VIRGINIA
DA: DECEMBER 1, 1993

POLITICAL ENVIRONMENT

The Virginia GOP made solid gains in the '93 elections. Former U.S. Rep. George Allen won the governor's mansion, the first time a Republican has won it in the last 12 years. Jim Gilmore, the GOP nominee for Attorney General, also won, giving Republicans control of two of the three statewide seats. The GOP also gained five seats in the House of Delegates.

There is a political firestorm that you need to be aware of. After Allen won the nomination at the GOP convention, he went to the state party and asked for money for television. Dem. nominee Mury Sue Terry had $2.2 million in the bank and had just bought $500,000 worth of T.V. The GOP chairman, Patrick McSweeney, refused to give Allen money to go on T.V. to match Terry's buy. Now that Allen has won, he wants to put his own person in the Chairmanship. McSweeney, however, won't budge and as of today (12/1), it is still a standoff. You will likely be asked about this.

One of our best chances to pick up a Democrat Senate seat in 1994 is in Virginia. Chuck Robb has suffered serious political damage in past years due to allegations about his high-flying lifestyle when he was Virginia's governor from 1983 to 1987 and the more recent, and more damaging, legal problems resulting from his feud with Gov. Doug Wilder. As talk of Robb's impending indictment grew, his political position sank. However, a grand jury did not indict Robb and his political fortunes immediately improved, though they are still very weak.

More recently, there have been press reports that a number of Democrat Party activists have urged Robb to step aside because they fear he will lose the seat. In addition, a canvass of Democrat County Chairmen showed that only 37% of them want him to run for re-election.

The most prominently mentioned name is former Governor Gerald Baliles. However, Democrat Party Chairman Mark Warner, 11th CD Rep. Leslie Byrne, and others have also been mentioned. Richmond attorney Sylvia Clute and former Governor Douglas Wilder have already announced they will run against Robb in the Democrat primary or convention.

OLIVER NORTH

Oliver North is a native of upstate New York, but has been a resident of Virginia for over 20 years. He graduated from Annapolis in 1968, commissioned in the Marines and shortly thereafter was assigned as an Infantry Platoon Commander in Vietnam. His military decorations include the Silver Star, the Bronze Star, two Purple Hearts, and three Navy Commendation Medals.

Of course, Oliver North is best known for his involvement in the Iran-Contra Affair. He was indicted, convicted and then, on appeal, the conviction was overturned. North's official position is that he was fully cleared of all legal charges in the so called Iran-Contra Affair on September 16, 1991.

Currently North is chairman and co-founder of Guardian Technologies International, Inc., a Virginia-based manufacturer of protective equipment for law enforcement. He is also president of the Freedom Alliance, a non-profit foundation dedicated to "promoting the principles of individual liberty, a strong defense, and traditional values in national policy." North writes a weekly syndicated newspaper column, broadcasts daily radio commentary and is working on a sequel to his book, Under Fire, an international best seller.

North lives in Fairfax County with his wife Betsy and their four children, Stuart, Tait, Sarah, and Dornin.

JAY STEPHENS

Former U.S. Attorney Jay Stephens is a native of Iowa who has lived in the Washington, D.C. area since moving to Virginia in 1973. After graduating from Harvard Law school in 1973, he started his career in the Watergate Special Prosecutor's office and then worked for a period of years with the Overseas Private Investment Corporation. In 1981, he worked at the Justice Department as the Counsel to the Criminal Division Director, and was named Associate Deputy Attorney General by President Reagan. He served two years as the Deputy Counsel to Reagan and was appointed U.S. Attorney in 1988.

Stephens is perhaps best known for his successful prosecution of former D.C. Mayor Marion Barry. Earlier in the year, there was controversy surrounding Attorney General Janet Reno's firing of all U.S. Attorneys, with the most controversial firing being that of Jay Stephens. Stephens was in the middle of the probe into Congressman Dan Rostenkowski's office accounts.

Stephens has also been mentioned recently as a candidate for the 8th CD against Rep. Jim Moran.

Stephens is married and has three children.

JIM MILLER

Jim Miller is the recently resigned Chairman of Citizens for a Sound Economy, a free market advocacy group. He lectures at George Mason University where he is a John M. Olin Distinguished Fellow at the Center for Study of Public Choice.

Miller is also involved in several business endeavors. He is Chairman of the Advisory Board of Capital Economics as well as a member of several boards of various advisory groups and small investment corporations.

Miller is probably best known as President Reagan's OMB Director from 1985 - 1988. Prior to that, he was Chairman of the Federal Trade Commission from 1981 - 1985.

Miller holds a Ph.D. in economics from the University of Virginia and has written over 100 articles in professional journals. He has authored, co-authored or edited seven books, the most recent of which is The Economist as Reformer: Revamping the FTC, 1981-1985.

Miller resides in McLean and is married with three children.

VIRGINIA

Senate Race Update

- o The VA Dem Central Committee meets 12/11 to decide the method for selecting a nominee. Sen. Robb prefers a primary rather than a party convention as does Wilder. However, a primary could case more clashes within the Democratic party resulting in a sure Republican win.
- o A telephone survey of VA Dem party local chairs by the Charlottesville Daily Progress found most "do not favor" either Sen. Robb or Gov. Wilder. Of the 146 elected local and district Dem chairs, 110 responded to the survey conducted 11/22-26. Only 37% of the 110 favor Robb, 10% favor Wilder, and more than half said they were undecided about who the party should nominate for Robb's seat or that they favor some candidate other than Robb or Wilder.
- o On the convention vs. primary, the above poll showed that 49% favor a convention, one-third favor a primary and 18% are undecided.
- o As you know, there has been a recruitment effort taking place to persuade ex-Joint Chief of Staff Chair Gen. Colin Powell to run for Senate.

Allen - McSweeney Feud

- o On December 4, the VA GOP Central Committee voted 48-25 to ask VA GOP Chair Patrick McSweeney to resign, but he refused. McSweeney argued that he was "elected to a four-year term by thousands of delegates" to the '92 VA convention. Governor-elect Allen will not deal with McSweeney on party matters and will instead work through congressional district and local chairmen.

Farris - Warner Feud

- o As Senator Warner would not endorse Farris for the LG spot, Farris, backed by his supporters, is considering a run for Senate in 1996.

HOTLINE 12/6/93

*19 VIRGINIA: GOP CMTE VOTE SAYS RESIGN, BUT McSWEENEY WON'T GO
The VA GOP Central Cmte 12/4 voted 48-25 to ask VA GOP Chair Patrick McSweeney to resign, but McSweeney refused. Noting that he was "elected to a four-year term by thousands of delegates" to the '92 VA convention, McSweeney: "Those are the people that I have to answer to." The vote count was "seven votes short of the [75%] needed to oust" a party chair. Gov.-elect George Allen (R), who did not attend the meeting, sought McSweeney's resignation due to his belief that McSweeney "did not do enough to help" his recent campaign and "tried to prevent his nomination, which McSweeney says is not true." Allen "said he would not deal with McSweeney on party matters and would instead work through congressional district and local chairmen." An Allen letter read to the Cmte prior to the vote said he no longer trusted McSweeney. Allen, from the letter: "Reconciliation is impossible." VCU's Robert Holsworth said the "very visible public squabble ... could undermine one of the reasons for Allen's 17-point victory": "The public voted not only for policy change, but for a change to the internal bickering that has consumed the Democratic Party" (Whitley, RICHMOND TIMES-DISPATCH, 12/5). If the vote was a victory for Allen, "some of [Allen's] own supporters acknowledge that it came at an especially high cost. ... It is unfortunate symbolism that one of his first public acts be a purge of his enemies" (Harris, W. POST, 12/5). Allen CoS Jay Timmons: "Some honest differences were aired. The vote hopefully has put that behind us" (AP/W. TIMES, 12/5).

HOTLINE 12/10/93**12 VIRGINIA: WILDER ACCUSES DEM CHAIR WARNER OF SELF-PROMOTION

Two days before Dems meet in Richmond to choose a nominating procedure, Gov. Doug Wilder (D) "suggested" that VA Dem Chair Mark Warner "was promoting a convention so he could become the party's nominee." Wilder, who picked Warner to be Dem chair: "He's supposed to be my friend." Wilder noted Kenneth Gercoe, VA Dem vice-chair for finance, "has been quoted as saying that the party needs 'a reasonably well accomplished, but young, white male professional without baggage who can stand up and say, 'I'm not Oliver North.'" Wilder said Warner "does fit that mold." Wilder made his comments after a ceremony naming the Richmond federal courthouse after retired Supreme Court Justice Lewis Powell. Sen. Charles Robb (D) also attended the ceremony, where he and Wilder "shook hands tentatively." Though Wilder, Robb and Dem attys Dan Alcorn and Sylvia Clute "back a primary, many steering committee members favor a convention. ... Privately, they say they feel a convention would give the party a chance to come up with an alternative to Robb and Wilder. ... They don't see Alcorn or Clute as viable alternatives." Warner said 12/9 that he is not interested in running for the Senate: "My intention is to be party chair. ... My job is to try to keep this party united and to minimize dissention. This means I should remain a neutral arbiter throughout this debate about the process" (Whitley, RICHMOND TIMES-DISPATCH, 12/10). Wilder also "accused" Dem Party leaders of "wanting a convention ... because they 'would love to get rid of me so I'd no longer be a thorn in their side.'" Warner said he was "disappointed by the tenor of the governor's comments," and said that he told Gercoe to "recant or apologize" at the 12/11 Dem gathering "if the vice chairman hopes to retain his party post" (Baker, W. POST, 12/11).

PRIMARY MOMENTUM: FAIRFAX JOURNAL's Gowlak reports "party activists said members are still divided on the question" of whether to have a primary or convention. "But they said there also appears to be growing support for an early" 6/94 June primary. Alcorn said there is a feeling that a "primary has the momentum" (12/10).

ONE SOLUTION TO XMAS SHOPPING: North "has come up with an unusual way to raise money for his campaign: Give $40 and you get an autographed copy of his new book." North recently sent letters to potential supporters advertising that for a minimum contribution of $40 he would send you a "personally autographed copy of 'One More Mission.'" North spokesperson Mark Merritt "said the campaign mailing could sell as many as 5,000 copies -- which would bring in as much as $100,000." Both Merritt and a spokesperson for the publisher "say North will not profit personally from the arrangement. He bought the books involved at a discount and will not receive author's royalties on those copies." Politicians "familiar with campaign fund-raising say the arrangement is unusual but appears to be legal." The FEC "has previously allowed campaign organizations to profit from the sale of books or art." The letter notes: "In full disclosure, please know that almost half of your contribution of $40 will go to pay for the book and to cover the cost of postage and handling. But you will also be helping the Oliver North for U.S. Senate Committee" (Jenkins, W. POST, 12/11). Also running: Ex-U.S. Atty Jay Stevens and ex-OMB Dir. James Miller (R) and atty Sylvia Clute (D). Possible: Ex-Gov. Gerald Baliles (D).

Goody Pie kids

PRESS RELEASE

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

CONTACT PERSON ANN BERRY 1-800-742-1129

DEC. 2/1993

PRINCE GEORGE COUNTY MD. LEADS THE WAY. THE FIRST PUBLIC SCHOOL DISTRICT TO INTRODUCE THE LIVE GOODY PIE KIDS' DRUG PREVENTION PROGRAM PULLS ANOTHER COUP. DEC 2, 1993, THE INITIAL RESULTS OF THE EARLY CHILDHOOD [PRE-K -3RD GRADE] DRUG PREVENTION EDUCATION PROGRAM "HERE COME THE GOODY PIE KIDS" WILL BE ANNOUNCED AT ROGER HEIGHTS ELEMENTARY SCHOOL IN BLADENSBURG, MD. AT A LIVE PERFORMANCE OF THE PROGRAM BETWEEN 9:30 A M AND 10:30 A M. CONGRESSMAN STENEY HOYER, WHO HAS SHOWN SUPPORT FOR THE PROGRAM SINCE JULY 24, 1991, IS EXPECTED TO ATTEND ALONG WITH THE CREATORS OF THE PROGRAM SARAH AND ANN BERRY AND DR RUTH BAXTER, EARLY CHILDHOOD SPECIALIST.

ELIZABETH GALLUM, HEAD OF PRINCE GEORGE COUNTY, MD HEALTH CURRICULUM DEVELOPMENT DEPT. CHOSE THE "HERE COME THE GOODY PIE KIDS" DRUG PREVENTION KIT FOR EVERY ONE OF THE 125 ELEMENTARY SCHOOLS IN P.G. COUNTY FOR DELIVERY IN AUGUST OF 1993. HER ONLY QUESTION OF ANN BERRY CO-CREATOR OF THE GOODY PIE KIDS' CONCEPT WITH HER DAUGHTER SARAH BERRY WAS, "ANN CAN WE GET THE PUPPETS ECONOMICAL ENOUGH TO WHERE WE CAN PUT A SET IN EVERY SINGLE SCHOOL?"

THE STORY OF THE BEGINNING OF THE GOODY PIE KIDS DRUG PREVENTION PROGRAM IS JUST AS MUCH A FAIRY TALE AS THE ADVENTURE ITSELF. FIVE YEARS AGO WHEN SARAH AND ANN BERRY WERE SMOOTHING OUT THE CHILDREN'S STORY "THE ORIGINAL GOODY PIE KIDS' ADVENTURE" IN A DAY CARE CENTER WITH AN AUDIENCE OF 3, 4 & 5 YEAR OLD CHILDREN, THEY WERE SHOCKED WHEN THE KIDS BEGAN ASKING DOZENS OF QUESTIONS CONCERNING THE EVIL SPELL IN THE STORY, ALCOHOL AND OTHER DRUGS.

NOT HAVING MUCH MORE OF AN ANSWER THAN GOODY PIE KIDS SAY NO TO DRUGS, ANN AND SARAH BEGAN TO SEARCH FOR REAL ANSWERS. ANSWERS THAT REALLY SAID SOMETHING. NOT FINDING ANY READY MADE PROGRAMS PROVIDING MATERIAL THAT COULD COMMUNICATE TO SUCH A YOUNG AGE OF CHILDREN AND MAINTAIN INTEREST, THEIR WORK WAS CUT OUT FOR THEM. WORKING CLOSELY WITH THE NATIONAL CLEARING HOUSE ON ALCOHOL AND DRUG ABUSE INFORMATION, AN AGENCY CONNECTED TO THE FEDERAL OFFICE OF SUBSTANCE ABUSE PREVENTION, THEIR EFFORTS WERE REWARDED WITH THE DEVELOPMENT OF "HERE COME THE GOODY PIE KIDS" DRUG PREVENTION KIT.

CONSTANTLY ON THE LOOK OUT FOR MATERIAL FOR PRE-KINDERGARTEN, KINDERGARTEN, AND 1, 2, & 3RD GRADE THAT COMMUNICATES A CLEAR NO-USE MESSAGE IN LINE WITH THE STRINGENT GUIDELINES OF THE NATIONAL CLEARING HOUSE ON ALCOHOL AND OTHER DRUG ABUSE INFORMATION, USING CROSS CURRICULUM TEACHING STRATEGIES, GALLUM'S CHOICE WAS AN EASY ONE TO MAKE.

REALIZING THE INTERACTION CREATED BY THE GOODY PIE KIDS AND THE EFFECT THAT THIS POSITIVE SET OF HERO ROLE MODELS WOULD HAVE ON YOUNG CHILDREN FACING PROBLEMS MORE SERIOUS THAN FACED BY ADULTS ONLY 2 DECADES AGO, GALLUM WORKED CLOSELY WITH THE BERRYS AND DR RUTH BAXTER OF WASHINGTON D. C. TO MAINTAIN THE EXCITEMENT LEVEL WHILE TEACHING VALUE PATTERNS AND DELIVERING STRONG SAFETY MESSAGES CONCERNING THE DANGERS OF CIGARETTES, ALCOHOL AND OTHER DRUGS.

THE GOODY PIE KIDS ARE KNOWN AS AN EXCITING LIVE PROGRAM TO THE MORE THAN 80,000 CHILDREN THAT HAVE SEEN THE ADVENTURE BROUGHT TO LIFE BY SARAH AND ANN BERRY. THE BERRYS HAVE ACHIEVED NATIONAL RECOGNITION AND ARE VERY EXCITED THAT NOW OTHERS WILL BE ABLE TO PERFORM THE LIVE PROGRAM TOO.

PROBLEM STATEMENT

To be a young child in America today is to be subjected to a constant barrage of mixed messages and volumes of misinformation concerning illegal drugs, alcohol, and cigarettes. The sources of this tremendous amount of negative information ranges from little children playing drug dealer instead of cowboys and Indians to one of the most potent attitude shapers in our society today, the family T.V. The following statistics illustrate these characteristics:

1. Illegal drug and alcohol use is rising the fastest in children age 9 to 13 1 years.
2. Every 7 minutes a child is arrested for a drug offense in the U.S.A. 2
3. 26% of 4th graders have used alcohol. 3
4. 25% of children 13-17 have been offered drugs in the last 30 days. 4
5. Some 30 percent of child and adolescent suicides can be directly related to depression aggravated by drug or alcohol. 5
6. The number of students using drugs by 6th grade has tripled since 1975.6
7. Only 37% of 4th graders think of cigarettes as drugs.7

The spiraling trend of first time drug and alcohol use down to younger and younger children is a frightening crisis that we absolutely must find answers to. National statistics clearly show that prevention education is the most lasting and complete path to take to end this National nightmare.

The very reason that our program was founded was the fear and apprehension of young children when we were telling them a story with only 2 lines in it about drugs. Those little children expressed such concern and a need to know that " Here Come the Goody Pie Kids " came into being in that field. Since that day we have had approximately 34,000 student contacts.

When you hear from a first grader how they were pressured to take drugs on their school bus or when you read a letter from a second grader and she describes how she went into her hallway where she lives and saw a women sticking a needle full of drugs in her arm, you truly know that we must be totally committed to taking intensive drug prevention education to our very youngest children. Just yesterday they were babies.

The risk factors that lead to alcohol and other drugs that are so difficult to measure such a factor of being removed from peer group for intensive therapy but as of yet a non user. Lack of parental knowledge of the extreme dangers to young children concerning alcohol and other drugs.

WHO ARE THE GOODY PIE KIDS®

Educators have very insightful ideas about what should go into a goal-oriented activity package for students. So when we started creating the Here Come The Goody Pie Kids™ Drug Prevention Kit we went straight to them for help. In fact, teachers and other practicing educators have been involved throughout the entire development of this kit. That is what makes it a remarkable concept which answers a need in developing the coping skills of very young students.

While the Here Come The Goody Pie Kids™ Drug Prevention Kit measures student knowledge of drug identification and consequences of drug use, it also supports many other student learning activities. These include everything from spelling, handwriting, and motor skills, to the establishment of positive behavior patterns and values. These are by no means the entire spectrum of learning activities that can be achieved from this one kit.

The Here Come The Goody Pie Kids™ Drug Prevention Kit is an outgrowth of the children's book, The Original Goody Pie Kids' Adventure™, and the live performance of the nationally acclaimed Here Come The Goody Pie Kids™ Drug Prevention and Education Program. When Sarah and Ann Berry created their Goody Pie Kids®, they had no idea that their characters would be educating and guiding thousands of children at schools, churches, and day care centers. The concept flourishes as children enthusiastically respond to the live presentation, and send countless letters to say they want to become Goody Pie Kids®. These children now know it is Fun to be Good™, and they want others to be the same.

The reason for the tremendous response from educators and the demand for the expansion of the Goody Pie Kid® program is the scarcity of acceptable material for pre-school through third-grade students. The wide acceptance of the Goody Pie Kids® program is explained by the clear "no use" message regarding alcohol and other drugs. This is in line with the strict guidelines of the Department of Health and Human Services.

The true test of the exciting value of this creation lies in the strength of its age-appropriateness and its ability to capture the student's interest. Most educators will find that the combined components of this kit include learning, reinforcement, and testing, which can be used over and over to teach, reiterate, and then evaluate their student's understanding of different subjects - two of the most important being drug prevention and positive behavior patterns.

WHY

CHILDREN NEED DRUG PREVENTION EDUCATION

To be a young child in America today is to be subject to a constant barrage of mixed messages and volumes of misinformation concerning alcohol, cigarettes, and other drugs. The sources of this tremendous amount of negative information ranges from little children playing "drug dealer" instead of traditional childhood games, to one of the most important attitude shapers in society today - the family television. In a survey, thirty-three percent of children noted that television and movies were a major source of their information of why cigarettes, alcohol, and other drugs might be fun to try.

Alcohol and drug use is rising fastest in children ages nine- to thirteen-years old according to a survey sponsored by the American Advertising Council. Twenty-six percent of our fourth graders have used alcohol, and only forty-seven percent of our fourth graders considered cigarettes a drug. The number of students using drugs by sixth grade has tripled since 1975. From pre-kindergarten on, every student knows another who regularly uses cigarettes, alcohol, and/or other drugs. The at-risk age is getting younger and younger each year. Unfortunately, programs for changing this trend are few in number.

Drug prevention research specialists tell us that it is imperative to intervene in the young student's behavioral development. Research tells us that students who perceive drugs as harmful are less likely to use them. The Here Come The Goody Pie Kids™ Drug Prevention Kit is aimed at the pre-kindergarten through third-grade students, presenting information of how harmful cigarettes, alcohol, and other drugs can be with a clear "no use" message.

When you hear from a first grader about how they were pressured to take drugs on their school bus, or when you read a letter from a second grader who describes how she saw a woman in the hallway where she lives sticking a needle full of drugs in her arm, you truly know as we know that we must be totally committed to taking intensive drug prevention education to our very youngest children. Just yesterday they were babies. Today, the Here Come The Goody Pie Kids™ Drug Prevention Kit gives them a sense of purpose and the proper tools to accomplish extraordinary things.

TO REACH THEM - THE YOUNG CHILD, PRE-KINDERGARTEN THROUGH THIRD GRADE

Research tells us that drug prevention programs should aim at intervening in the development of the personality of the child instead of focusing on campaigns that state "Just Say No." When children internalize positive behavior patterns it is more effective than just learning a set of rules that they have a choice to use or not to use. "Attitudes are formed very young," says David Robbins, a community prevention specialist in the U.S. Office of Substance Abuse Prevention. "If information isn't shared, and if limits are not set at an early age, children are going to be more susceptible to the lure of drugs."

Primary drug prevention programs make health education a priority. Drug education can begin with pre-schoolers by teaching them about the harmful effects drugs have, along with who they can take medication from. This educational effort is also a priority of the Here Come The Goody Pie Kids™ Drug Prevention Kit.

Educational and social service professionals are astounded at the responses of young children, such as a four-year old saying, "Drugs will fry your brains," or a six-year old in front of his classmates saying, "Drugs will make you die and go to jail." With directed questions throughout the Here Come The Goody Pie Kids™ Drug Prevention Kit, children are encouraged to explore this kind of fear, apprehension, and curiosity about drugs, exchanging viewpoints that establish cross-learning. As the peer group begins to become more positive, adopting The Goody Pie Kids® attitude, everyone seems to get along better.

DRAFT CRIME RELEASE

With his recent public statements on new gun-control initiatives, President Clinton is elevating showmanship over substance, politics over good policy.

Earlier this year, Senate Republicans and Democrats were able to put aside their partisan differences and pass a truly bipartisan $22 billion anticrime package. And that's the way it should be, for there's nothing partisan or political about crime: A mugger doesn't ask you if you're a Republican or a Democrat before he sticks a gun in your ribs.

And that's why it's important for the President to stop playing politics and lend his unqualified and public support to the tough anticrime proposals contained in the Senate-passed bill.

[ I challenge President Clinton to join me in making a joint public appearance--anytime, anywhere, in any forum--to endorse the tough provisions of the Senate-passed bill.

The American people deserve the toughest crime bill possible, not a watered-down version or "Crime Bill Lite," as some members of Congress would prefer.

The Senate-passed bill contains the following tough-on-crime initiatives:

- * truth-in-sentencing, which would require violent criminals to serve at least 85% of their sentences;
- * the construction of ten new regional prisons to which states can send their most violent criminals if they adopt the truth-in-sentencing reform.
- * tough mandatory minimum sentences for those who use or carry a gun in the commission of a crime, including life imprisonment without parole or the death penalty, if the crime results in the death of an innocent victim;
- * the death penalty for drug kingpins;
- * a new anti-gang statute to crack down on violent gang activity; and
- * a series of new measures to combat domestic and street violence against women, including three new Federal Rules of Evidence allowing for the admissibility of past sex offenses in sexual assault and child molestation cases.

To the President, I simply say this: Focus your efforts. Keep your eye on the ball. The most important step you can take to fight crime is to ensure the enactment of the Senate-passed bill--without amendment and with your full support.

DEFENSE BUDGET CUT TOO FAR, TOO FAST
DOLE URGES PRESIDENT TO REEVALUATE HUGE CUTS IN DEFENSE,
LISTEN TO MILITARY EXPERTS

WASHINGTON - In a joint letter today to President Clinton, Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole, Senator Strom Thurmond (R-SC), and Senator Pete Domenici (R-NM) called on the President to reevaluate his plans for deeper defense cuts and to listen to his military experts who are saying that deeper cuts could put American security in jeopardy.

Senator Strom Thurmond, Ranking Member of the Senate Armed Services Committee, and Senator Pete Domenici, Ranking Member of the Senate Budget Committee joined Senator Dole in expressing their concern about the deep cuts in the Clinton budget plan.

"Earlier this year, many of us in the Senate expressed our dismay when President Clinton called for cutting an additional $127 billion from our defense program", said Dole. "This was double the amount candidate Clinton had campaigned on."

"It seems to me the Administration went about this backwards. The President laid out a budget plan slashing defense by $127 billion, persuaded Democrats in Congress to pass it, and then asked his military experts what our defense needs are for the post cold war world", said Dole, referring to the so-called Bottom Up Review released in August. "No one was surprised when the facts showed we were cutting too fast, too far to do the job."

"On one hand, the President has sought to expand our military operations around the world in these so-called peace keeping operations, while his budget cuts bring defense spending below a level not seen since before Pearl Harbor. In my view, it is time to sound a wake up call and take a look around the world. North Korea, Iran, Bosnia, Iraq -- you don't have to look too far to see the world is still a dangerous place", said Dole.

"Senators Thurmond, Domenici, and I encourage the President to take this matter under personal advisement and to remember the lessons of the past when America cut defense too far, too fast", said Dole. "As Commander-in-Chief, I know he will not delegate responsibility for our national security to the budget people."

TALKING POINTS FOR SENATOR DOLE
LUNCHEON WITH BOB GOODLATTE
DECEMBER 13, 1993
ROANOKE, VA

* It's great to have the Sixth District seat back in capable GOP hands with Bob Goodlatte as your Representative. And we're here today to make sure we keep it that way.

* Bob and the 47 other Republican freshman have really helped shake things up in Washington, D.C. this year. It has been a welcome change.

* We're going to build on the great Republican victories here in Virginia in 1993.

The victories of Governor-elect George Allen, Attorney General-elect Jim Gilmore and the solid gains in the state house will serve as building blocks for even greater gains in Virginia next year.

* Bob and Maryellen Goodlatte are the kind of people we need more of in Washington, D.C. They have the values and character we desperately need in our elected officials and families.

* It's great to see that Caldwell Butler (who served in Congress 1972-1982 when he retired) and Bob have maintained an important relationship with Caldwell serving as his mentor. (Caldwell Butler will be in the audience and at the Roundtable Discussion.)

Bob served as Caldwell's District Director from 1977-1979.

After Caldwell Butler retired in 1982, the Sixth District seat was held by a Democrat for 10 years.

Bob won the Sixth District seat last year in an open seat contest, taking 60% of the vote against a strong Democrat candidate.

* Bob Goodlatte is 41 years old and a former attorney in Roanoke. His wife, Maryellen is a partner in a major law firm in Roanoke. They have two children, Jenny - 10 years old and Bobby who is 7 years old.

Bob is a solid, conservative Republican.

* In Virginia there are 7 Democrats holding seats and 4 Republicans.

* One potential humorous story to note:

Last year, during the campaign Bob had promised his children he and Maryellen would take them to Disney World after the election was over. It was a pretty well known fact among the party people and the media had picked it up as well. The kids were all excited about the trip and anxiously looking forward to November.

In October, Bob and his family were riding in a convertible car in a parade. The family was waving and Bob was shouting "Remember me in November, Remember me in November!"

Then, his son Bobby shouts out "Yeah, but we won't be here!"

So, with Disney World coming to Virginia, Bob and his family won't have as far to go next trip.

(The media wrote about the story and Bob mentioned it throughout the campaign.)

BOB GOODLATTE
6TH DISTRICT, VIRGINIA

Congress of the United States
House of Representatives
Washington, DC 20515-4606

Biography

Bob Goodlatte, age 40, has lived in the Sixth Congressional District of Virginia all his adult life.

From 1974 to 1977, Bob attended Washington and Lee University School of Law where he earned his law degree. While in Lexington, he and his wife, Maryellen were married in Lee Chapel.

Bob earned his undergraduate degree in Government from Bates College in Lewiston, Maine. He graduated with honors in the Department of Government. Bob was active in many college organizations and was elected president of the Representative Assembly (student government).

After earning his law degree at W & L, Bob went to work for then Congressman Caldwell Butler. He served as Congressman Butler's District Office Manager from 1977 to 1979. During that time, Bob regularly traveled to Covington, Lynchburg, Roanoke, Lexington, Hot Springs, Troutville, Staunton, Waynesboro, Monterey, and throughout the district, meeting with and helping the residents. Not only did Bob Goodlatte listen to the governmental policy concerns of Sixth District citizens, he also helped unsnarl the often tangled web of federal regulations as they affected individuals and businesses.

In 1980 Bob founded his own private law practice in Roanoke. Two years later he became a partner in the law firm of Bird, Kinder, & Huffman where he worked until his election to Congress in 1992.

Bob has long been active in his community. He served as the President of the Civitan Club of Roanoke from 1989 until 1990 and he has been an active member since 1985. That organization is a major sponsor of Special Olympics and helps the handicapped and less privileged in the community.

From 1989 until the present, Bob has been a member of the Building Better Boards Advisory Council, an affiliate of the United Way of the Roanoke Valley. That council has provided assistance and guidance to the volunteer boards of local charitable organizations.

Since 1988, Bob has been an active member of the Parent Teachers Association of Fishburne Park Elementary School, the public school of his children.

PRINTED ON RECYCLED PAPER

Bob was elected to Congress in 1992. He won an open seat created when Democrat Congressman Jim Olin, retired after serving a decade. The campaign was his first attempt at public office.

Bob serves on the Judiciary Committee and the Agricultural Committee. His subcommittee assignments on Judiciary are: the Economic and Commercial Law Subcommittee and the Administrative Law and Governmental Relations Subcommittee. His subcommittee assignments on Agriculture are: the Livestock subcommittee and the Specialty Crops and Natural Resources Subcommittee.

The Economic and Commercial Law Subcommittee is an especially important subcommittee which deals with key business issues such as the Line Item, the Balanced Budget Amendment, anti-trust law and bankruptcy law.

The Livestock Subcommittee is crucial to the Sixth District as it focuses on poultry, dairy, livestock and animal welfare.

6 Robert W. Goodlatte (R)

Of Roanoke — Elected 1992; 1st Term

Born: Sept. 22, 1952, Holyoke, Mass.
Education: Bates College, B.A. 1974; Washington and Lee U., J.D. 1977.
Occupation: Lawyer; congressional aide.
Family: Wife, Maryellen Flaherty; two children.
Religion: Christian Scientist.
Political Career: Roanoke City GOP Committee chairman, 1980-83.
Capitol Office: 214 Cannon Bldg. 20515; 225-5431.

The Path to Washington: Although this is Goodlatte's first elected office, he is a long-time GOP activist, going back to his days as president of the student Republicans at Bates College in Maine. Many years later, Goodlatte was still involved in party politics as a top aide to GOP Rep. M. Caldwell Butler, and then as chairman of the 6th District Republican Party. He also headed the local Bush-for-President effort in 1988 and the local committee to re-elect Republican Sen. John W. Warner in 1990.

Goodlatte had thought about running for Congress in 1986, but the arrival of his second child at the start of the campaign season kept him from entering the race. When incumbent Democrat Jim Olin chose not to seek re-election in 1992, Goodlatte decided the time was right, and he campaigned on the promise to exert "Republican leadership . . . for a change."

In previous years in the district, the GOP has fought internally over its congressional nominee because of clashes between more traditional Republicans and conservative religious activists. But within weeks of his decision to run, Goodlatte had united these antagonistic elements behind him, leaving the rancor to the Democrats.

Stephen Alan Musselwhite, an insurance executive and a moderate, emerged with the Democratic nomination, but he was never able to unite the party behind him.

Although Goodlatte went out of his way during the campaign to stress his opposition to organized labor's legislative agenda, labor leaders refused to back Musselwhite, in large part because he did not back legislation to ban employers from permanently replacing striking workers.

Musselwhite also had to contend with bad publicity over letters he wrote to a judge asking for leniency for two white-collar criminals.

The 6th, which had been held by the GOP for 30 years before Olin's 1982 election, is generally described as a moderate-to-conservative district. Goodlatte believes he fits that description philosophically, and says that in his mind this means a "limited government, decentralized, not trying to solve every problem with more spending programs and with regulation."

Like so many first-year members, Goodlatte supports a balanced-budget amendment and a presidential line-item veto. Yet unlike most freshmen, Goodlatte opposed all budget plans offered on the House floor in March 1993, including a Republican substitute by John R. Kasich of Ohio that received the support of all but 41 Republicans but which Goodlatte believed did not go far enough in reducing the deficit.

Goodlatte backs term limits and was among a group of GOP members who pushed through a rule prohibiting anyone in the Republican caucus from holding any top committee post for more than six consecutive years.

Goodlatte's district is the most heavily agricultural in Virginia. It is a district in which poultry and dairy farming predominate. As a result, Goodlatte sought and received a spot on the House Agriculture Committee. He also took a seat on the Judiciary Committee.

Goodlatte says he is also interested in building up his district's economy by helping to expand the high-technology businesses in the district.

Though Goodlatte has not previously held office, he believes that his experience working for the popular Butler — who warmly endorsed him — will be a help.

Goodlatte ran Butler's district offices and gained a firsthand appreciation for the importance of constituent service. His campaign brochures noted that he "made a name for himself serving people of the 6th District" by helping citizens with a host of problems, from cutting through red tape to "finding out why a Social Security check for a senior citizen was late."

Goodlatte opposes abortion except in cases of rape, incest or when the woman's life is in danger. He has said he supports allowing research with fetal tissue, but in March 1993 he voted on the House floor against a Democratic-sponsored measure to streamline the guidelines for donating tissue for such research.

On the issue of illegal drugs, Goodlatte says, "The message to criminals must be clear: If you sell drugs to our children, threaten our neighborhoods or injure innocent citizens, you'll be put behind bars for a long time. Guaranteed."

Virginia 6

The 6th is home to mountains and caverns, dairy farmers and cattle ranchers, isolated towns and large cities — and quite a few Republicans.

The Shenandoah Valley, which runs most of the length of the 6th, cultivated Republicanism long before it was acceptable in other parts of Virginia. The descendants of the area's 18th-century English, German and Scots-Irish settlers feuded with the Tidewater plantation aristocracy and became GOP mavericks in state politics.

The brand of Republicanism in the rural Valley traditionally has been a moderate one; when Virginia's conservative Democrats were identified with resistance to integration in the 1960s, Valley Republicans were progressive on racial issues. The GOP lost its grip on the 6th in the 1980s partly because the state party came to be dominated by staunchly conservative suburbanites outside Washington and Richmond, and by party-switching conservative Democrats. In 1985, when there was no moderate on the Republican ticket, the Democrats running for the three top state offices all carried the 6th. In 1989, the 6th did vote Republican for governor (against black Democrat L. Douglas Wilder), but the Democratic nominees for lieutenant governor and attorney general won the 6th. Goodlatte's 1992 victory ended Democrats' decadelong control of the 6th District House seat.

Roanoke, the major population center in the 6th, has an array of industries producing furniture and electrical products. Its sizable black and union elements make it the base of Democratic strength in the 6th. Bill Clinton won Roanoke by 12 points in 1992. In 1989, Wilder won the city with 59 percent. Democrats also can succeed in towns to the north, such as Covington and Clifton Forge, and in the counties around them, Bath and Alleghany. In his 1985 bid for lieutenant governor, Wilder won these cities but lost the counties. Clinton carried all but Bath. There are chemical plants and pulpwood and paper mills in this area, but the job picture is cloudy. Unemployment in December 1992 was 22 percent in Bath County.

Democratic support in the city of Roanoke is usually surpassed by the Republican vote in Roanoke's suburbs, in Lynchburg and in most of the district's rural areas. The nuclear energy company Babcock & Wilcox is one of Lynchburg's major employers, but the city is best known as the home of evangelist Jerry Falwell, his huge Thomas Road Baptist Church and Falwell-founded Liberty University (10,500 students). Goodlatte won 59 percent in Lynchburg in 1992.

Outside metropolitan Roanoke and Lynchburg, the district depends mainly on dairy farming, livestock and poultry. Rockingham County ranks third in the country in turkeys sold. Tourism enhances the local economy, with visitors traveling to Shenandoah National Park, George Washington National Forest and numerous caverns that dot the valley. Staunton boasts two museums of local notables: One is the house where Woodrow Wilson was born; the other celebrates The Statler Brothers, a country music group.

1990 Population: 562,572. White 492,594 (88%), Black 64,643 (11%), Other 5,335 (1%). Hispanic origin 3,855 (1%). 18 and over 437,920 (78%), 62 and over 98,709 (18%). Median age: 35.

In Washington
 Bliley has built relationships with the Energy and Commerce Committee. He and other Republicans on the panel have helped make it a Democratic stronghold.

Ushered into Congress by the conservative Reagan administration, Bliley has been a forceful conservative on abortion. But in Congress, Bliley has now found himself in a new administration.

And as he moves on positions of influence, the parochial needs of tobacco interests become a top priority. He has the ability to horse-trade.

As the new Energy Committee Chairman, Bliley is pitted against a liberal, Chairman F. James Sensenbrenner Jr. If early indications hold, Bliley's leadership could be a challenge.

In March 1993, Waxman's plan to cut money to two counties opposing Waxman's authorization bill for the Energy Committee. Bliley noted that Assistant, Philip Schuler, was asked for a House seat.

In the markup for nearly 20 minutes, the highest cancer rate in the district, man John D. Dingell asked the two to report.

Bliley's friend when Bliley was on the Subcommittee on Energy. After holding wide testing and approved legislation for drug companies, Drug Administration promise that guaranteed by the Department.
