TRIBUTE TO AN UNSUNG HERO

By J. Scott Hamilton, President

At AirShow Colorado! '94 at Jeffco Airport in late July, the Colorado Aviation Historical Society paid tribute to one of Colorado's unsung heroes of World War II: Bill Mc Ferren of Golden Colorado.

After training at Lowry Field in early 1943, Bill shipped out to the South Pacific to serve as navigator on a B-24 Liberator heavy bomber based in Australia. Because several crew members' wives were expecting (including Bill's wife, Betty) they christened their bomber "Fyrtle Myrtle."

In October of 1943, while on a bombing mission against a Japanese-held nickel mine in the Celebes Islands, Fyrtle Myrtle was attacked head-on by cannon-firing Japanese naval fighters. Cannon shells exploded in the nose of the bomber, killing the pilot, bombardier, and flight engineer and setting the aircraft on fire. The copilot, who was flying his first combat mission, froze at the controls, so Lt. Mc Ferren took charge and ordered the crew to bail out.

McFerren and his top turret gunner shoved the petrified copilot out the top hatch, and the gunner followed him out. Before Mc Ferren could escape, the airplane exploded and he found himself in free fall in a shower of flaming debris 500 feet above the blue Pacific waters. He managed to open his parachute an instant before he plunged into the water.

Inflating his life vest, he bobbed to the surface where the surviving crew members inflated a life raft and began to row toward a prearranged location where a U. S. submarine would be waiting to pick up downed air crews. Unfortunately, Mc Ferren and his crew were intercepted by a Japanese patrol boat and taken prisoner.

Ashore on Kendari, they were interrogated under torture by their captors, who were trying to find the location of the submarine in order to put it out of action. An Army photographer who had been along for the ride revealed under torture that only the pilot and the navigator knew the location of the submarine pickup point.

Puzzle: Who defends America in supersonic dogfights, uses her private airplane to inspire young scholars, and organized a Civilian Pilot Training Program that saved a Colorado college? For the answer see Page 3.

TRIBUTE Continued from p.1

Since the pilot was dead, his captors concentrated their torture on navigator McFerren, who decided then and there that he would protect the lives of the submarine's 90 man crew even if it cost him his own. When he did not break under torture, he was placed before a firing squad. The officer in charge of the firing squad told McFerren in no uncertain terms that if he did not reveal the information they were seeking, he would be dead in two minutes.

The firing squad chambered live ammunition in their rifles with the metallic sound of finality and pointed them at McFerren's heart. But he held his silence and they held their fire.

McFerren remained a prisoner of war for almost two years, during which time he suffered torture, starvation, and crippling illness, but he never betrayed his comrades-in-arms.

Not until August 23, 1945, did he have cause for hope that he would finally hold the child born during his captivity, for on that day U. S. Navy Hellcats swept over his POW camp that morning doing victory rolls and he knew the war was over and the good guys had won.

CAHS President Hamilton told this story, then in recognition of his exemplary, inspiring courage, the Colorado

Aviation Historical Society presented Bill McFerren with a plaque inscribed: Colorado Aviation Historical Society 1994 President's Tribute -- William McFerren Jr. -- A Shining Example. The enthusiastic crowd of 35,000 Coloradans responded with a wild, thunderous standing ovation.

Many spectators had tears in their eyes as they reached across the crowd barrier to hug McFerren or shake his hand and express their appreciation for his steadfastness through his ordeal.

The tribute was an extremely moving experience for everyone involved. The AirShow's organizers were astonished by the crowd's warm reception and pleased by the human touch the short ceremony added to the show.

Proceeds from the two-day show went to benefit the Flight For Life medical emergency helicopter service administered by Provenant Health Partners and funded by private contributions.

1994 COLORADO AVIATION HALL OF FAME BANQUET

After enjoying a sumptuous breakfast catered by Laurie Graham's Bread Winners, Inc. at Jeffco Airport, the CAHS general membership unanimously approved three Colorado Aviation Hall of Fame nominations recommended by the Hall of Fame Selection Committee.

The three, who will be honored at the Colorado Aviation Hall of Fame Banquet to be held at the USAF Academy Officers' Club on Saturday October 1, 1994, include:

140th Fighter Wing, Colorado Air National Guard receives the Hall of Fame's Organization Special Recognition. The Wing traces its roots to the 120th Observation Squadron, Colorado's first National Guard aviation unit formed in 1924 with Curtiss "Jennies". One of the top fighter squadrons in the country, the 140th "Colorado Cougars" now fly General Dynamics F-16s. Members of the unit saw combat in World War II and Korea and the unit fought in Viet Nam, flying F-100 Super Sabres. Over the years, the unit has produced many of the great leaders in Colorado Aviation, including a record 13 aviators who have, as individuals, been inducted into the Colorado Aviation Hall of Fame.

Lucile M. Bledsoe, of Wray, Colorado, manager of her familie's multi-state cattle ranching operation, aircraft owner, pilot and flight instructor. An active member of numerous aviation organizations, member and officer of the Colorado Aeronautical Board, Lucile has devoted her time and seemingly boundless energy to supporting aviation education and FAA aviation safety programs in Northeastern Colorado. She has been a driving force in airport development, uses her business aircraft to inspire students from local schools, and still finds time to enter (and win) air races.

L. E. "Dick" Smith. The late Dick Smith of Sterling Colorado is still remembered there as "The Flying Bandmaster". While teaching music at the Sterling High School, Smith began flying in 1930. By 1933, he had obtained a Transport Pilots License, which also included flight instructor privileges. Northeast Junior College in Sterling, had lost so many students who were going off to war that it was about to close its doors when Smith secured a Civilian Pilot Training Program (CPTP) for the college, enabling it to survive the war years. He soon added a similar program in Pueblo and in 1944, started a small airline based in Pueblo providing scheduled passenger service to Southeastern Colorado with Waco cabin biplanes. He is credited with training over 1500 pilots. Equally famous as a music teacher, Smith was last year inducted into the Colorado Music Educators Hall of Fame. (No photo available at press time.)

GONE WEST

The Colorado Aviation Historical Society lost several dear members and friends in the Summer of 1994. Among those gone West are:

Ed "Weatherman" Bowman of Denver. One of Colorado's most colorful characters, Ed enjoyed a fifty year career in broadcasting, working his way up the ladder from small AM radio stations to Denver TV Channels, 2; 4; and 7.

A frequent and popular Master of Ceremonies for the Colorado Aviation Hall of Fame, Ed received the Society's Special Recognition Award in 1989.

Always full of merriment and mischief, Ed was often seen attired in riding pants and cavalry boots astride his classic side car equipped motorcycle or flying the Ryan STS which he so lovingly restored.

The Ryan now resides in a Wichita, Kansas museum.

Dan J. Hoffman of Sterling, Colorado was inducted into the Colorado Aviation Hall of Fame in 1991. He first soloed an OX-5 powered Curtiss Robin which he and his brother Cecil purchased for $550.00 in 1935.

He was very active in Civil Air Patrol search and rescue work and in law enforcement flying as a deputy sheriff. He was longtime FAA Accident Prevention Councilor and was instrumental in improving Sterling's airport (Crosson Field).

anniversary of the U.S. Air Mail and flew one leg of the flight himself.

Dan helped organize the 1980 cross country mail flight which commemorated the 60th

Grace Birge Mayfield of Denver was inducted into the Colorado Aviation Hall of Fame in 1983. A member of the Women's Airforce Service Pilots (WASPS) in World War II, Grace flew most of the airplanes in the Air Corps' inventory on ferry missions intended to relieve male pilots for combat duty. After the war, Grace worked as a flight instructor for Harry Combs Mountain States Aviation and Clinton Aviation and taught aeronautics at Denver's Thomas Jefferson High School. At age 56, she decided to take up sky diving for sport and made some 60 jumps.

The memorial service held in her honor at Fort Logan National Cemetery resounded to the sound of the engines of her youth as a P-51 Mustang, followed by a C-45 and two AT-6s thundered over in a final salute to a great and respected aviator who touched so many lives. Contributions in her memory are solicited to the Grace B. Mayfield Young Aviators Scholarship Fund at Metropolitan State College in care of George Mayfield, 41 Herm Lane, Castle Rock, CO 80104

KRMA - TV SPECIAL FEATURES EARLY COLORADO AVIATION

Colorado Aviation Hall of Famers and CAHS officers and members were prominently featured in the recent "Rocky Mountain Legacy" feature on early aviation in Colorado, from the beginning into the 1930s. Among those interviewed on camera for the show were Dody Engel, Elrey Jeppesen, Bill Madsen, Joe Moffitt, and Donna Myers.

Members were extremely impressed with the thorough and accurate presentation of this epoch in Colorado's aviation history. The show is expected to air again on future public television broadcasts. Producer Trux Simmons hopes the show's success will enable him to gain authorization to produce two more episodes, one dealing with the war years and the third covering aviation history in Colorado since World War II.

THE SPACE STATION HAS LANDED!

By Geoff Hunt, Curator, Wings over the Rockies Air & Space Museum

The Wings Over the Rockies Air & Space Museum, located in Hangar 1 at Denver's recently decommissioned Lowry Air Force Base, new home of the Colorado Aviation Historical Society and Colorado Aviation Hall of Fame, will open on December 1, 1994.

The Museum's initial collection of 18 aircraft has been moved into the hangar, and the Martin Marietta Corporation has donated its original full-scale mockup of a U. S. Space Station crew work module. Built in the 1980s, the 45 foot long structure stands 18 feet high and weighs over 11,000 pounds. Now undergoing restoration for use as a walk-through exhibit, the module will allow visitors to experience accommodations and work areas planned for use by astronauts of the future. The exhibit is expected to be especially popular with school children who comprise the astronaut corps of the future.

ISSUES TO STRESS:

* The Benson campaign would appreciate any remarks which hit Roy Romer or the opposition on how they try to pry into a candidates private life. They hope the efforts by Romer and the Democrats will backfire.

* The Benson campaign has been routinely linking President Clinton to Roy Romer. Clinton's approval rating in Colorado is 30%. Any mention of this linkage would be appreciated.

Other points .....

* Bruce Benson is a different kind of candidate. He's a successful entrepreneur who can bring a new approach to Colorado Government.

* Bruce Benson is different from Gov. Romer. Romer favors more government, taxes, and regulation to solve problems, while Bruce Benson looks for new solutions outside of government.

* On the issue of crime, Bruce Benson is ahead of the pack. He favors a get tough policy -- which eliminates parole for violent offenders, implements a truth in sentencing provision, appoints a tough parole board, build no-frills prisons, get tough on juvenile crime, and hold judges responsible for their actions. He supports the death penalty.

* Bruce Benson has led the charge on welfare reform. He favors an overhaul of the welfare system which is causing a breakdown in the family. Gov. Romer has opposed welfare reform. He vetoed a reform plan in the early '90's, but then approved a small pilot program that tinkers with reform.

* The Benson campaign has focused on the key issues of crime, welfare reform, and education. He has also hit needless federal mandates, over-regulation, and the sorry state of Colorado's infrastructure.

KEY ATTENDEES:

- * Bruce and Marcie Benson
- * Greg Sparrow, Press secretary.
- * Sean Murphy, driver

COLORADO CANDIDATES FORUM AT BENSON CAMPAIGN HEADQUARTERS

Saturday, September 24, 1994

12:10 P.M. to 12:50 P.M. MST Denver, Co.

PURPOSE :

To attend and address a forum with Colorado state and local candidates at Benson Headquarters in Denver.

BACKGROUND :

The Benson campaign will be holding a statewide meeting on Saturday from 12:00 noon until 2:00 p.m. with all statewide and legislative candidates. They have also invited key GOP leaders at the county and state level as well as the Benson county organization leaders. The purpose of the meeting is to coordinate campaign activities and message.

STATE TICKET LINE-UP:

Governor:	Bruce Benson -	Former GOP chairman.
Lt. Gov.:	Bob Schaffer -	Currently a state senator.
Attorney Gen : Secretary of	Gale Norton -	Incumbent.
State:	Vikki Buckley-	Running for the open seat of
Treasurer:	Bill Öwens -	Natalie Meyer, who is retiring Open seat.Currently a state senator. Running good race.
House Speaker:	Chuck Berry -	GOP holds three seat margin.
Senate Pres.:	Tom Norton -	GOP holds four seat margin.

ISSUES TO AVOID:

* Many candidates here are strongly supportive of term limits. The Colorado voters passed a state and federal term limit measure in 1992. It limits state terms to 8 years and federal to 12.

ISSUES TO STRESS:

* Note that this year could be a watershed year for the GOP in Colorado and the nation.

* Urge every candidate to work hard in the final days to have a focused message and raise funds for the media war.

Congratualate everyone for running a strong, coordinated effort.

* Note how important it is to keep our majorities in the House and Senate.

* Express your congratulations to retiring Secretary of State Natalie Meyer. (DFP '88).

KEY ATTENDEES:

- * Bruce Benson
- * Attorney General Gale Norton
- * Treasurer candidate Bill Owens
- * Secretary of State candidate Vikki Buckley
- * House candidate and former Dole intern, Brian Sullivant
- * Other House and Senale candidates
- Natalie Meyer will not be at the event. House Speaker Berry and Senate President Norton may also be late or unable to attend.

About Bilowens

P.4/3

Senator Bill Owens is currently serving his second term in the Colorado State Senate, following three terms in the House. Executive Director for an energy trade association, he also has an extensive background in the private sector.

A native of Ft. Worth Texas, Bill graduated from Austin State University in 1973. He was awarded a full two-year fellowship to the Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs at the University of Texas, where he received his MPA in 1975.

Immediately upon graduation, Bill went to work as a management consultant for the accounting firm of Touche Ross & Company in Washington, D.C.

He moved to Colorado in 1977 to work with the management team at Gates Corporation in Denver and was named the Executive Director for the Colorado Petroleum Association in 1980.

After serving as Chairman of the Aurora Planning Commission, Bill was elected to the Colorado House of Representatives in 1982. Six years later, he was elected to the State Senate where he serves as Chairman of the State Affairs Committee and as a member of the Education and Finance Committees.

As a Legislator, Bill Owens has sponsored successful legislation in the areas of child abuse, education, legal reform and criminal justice. He is the author of the Colorado Charter School Act. The National Federation of Independent Business and the Colorado Association of Commerce and Industry have recognized Bill on numerous occasions for his support of the taxpayer and the private sector.

Bill and his wife Frances have three children, Monica, 11, Mark, 8, and Brett, 3.

GALE NORTON

ATTORNEY GENERAL

Gale A. Norton Colorado Attorney General

Elected in 1990, Gale Norton was the first woman in Colorado's history to hold the office of Attorney General. She defeated an eight-year incumbent to become the nation's only Republican woman state Attorney General.

Born in Wichita, Kansas, Gale Norton grew up in Thornton, Colorado. She earned her Juris Doctor and bachelor of arts, magna cum laude and Phi Beta Kappa, from the University of Denver.

She clerked for the Colorado Court of Appeals and spent four years as a senior attorney for the Mountain States Legal Foundation. During the Reagan administration, she was Associate Solicitor at the U.S. Department of the Interior, directing the nationwide legal staff of the National Park Service and the U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service. She also served as Assistant to the Deputy Secretary of Agriculture.

Gale Norton has been a lecturer at the University of Denver College of Law and was a National Fellow at Stanford University's Hoover Institution on War, Revolution and Peace. She also served as a policy analyst for the President's Council on Environmental Quality.

For the past two years she has served as chair of the National Association of Attorneys General Environment Committee and as a member of the National Environmental Enforcement Council. She chairs the Peace Officers Standards and Training Board and is a presidential appointee to the Western Water Policy Review Commission.

In 1991, Gale Norton was honored by the Federalist Society as Young Lawyer of the Year and was one of 20 elected officials from across the nation named by USA Weekend Magazine as a leader for the future.

Her office's campaign against telemarketing fraud was featured on CBS news and she was featured on America's Most Wanted to publicize fugitives sought by her office for terrorist activities.

Attorney General Norton is listed in Who's Who in America, Who's Who in the West, Who's Who of American Women, Who's Who in American Politics, Who's Who in American Law, Who's Who of Emerging Leaders in America and the World Who's Who of Women.

Vikki Buckley

for Secretary of State

1900 Grant St., Suite 810 . Denver, Colorado 80203 . (303) 860-7200

Vikki Buckley

Biography

Vikki Buckley is a Colorado native and the Republican candidate for Secretary of State. She grew up in a modest home in Denver, not far from McNichols arena where, on June 4, 1994, she defeated four other candidates for the Republican nomination for Secretary of State including Colorado's Republican National Committeewoman, a Denver Elections Commissioner and the District Director for a popular GOP Congressman.

She is the third black candidate in the history of the state to be nominated for statewide office, and the first black Republican candidate of either gender.

Vikki's parents taught her that if you worked hard, had good values, and believed in yourself, there was nothing that you could not achieve. Twenty years ago she walked into the Secretary of State's office to begin her new job as a clerk in the Corporations Division. She liked it, she was good at it, and she is proud of it. Through striving and dedication, she worked her way up to her present position as second in command in the Elections Division, a prominent position in state government.

The office of Secretary of State has come a long way since the day that Vikki walked in the door twenty years ago. She was privileged to witness - and participate in - the modernization of the office through three successive and successful Republican administrations.

Antique "Diebold" rotation machines and 3 by 5 cards - once the government norm -have been replaced by state of the art computer technology. Today, the office has on-line computer capability for commercial recordings, a computer disc imaging system for Uniform Commercial Code recordings, games of chance licensees, state and Federal Election Commission disclosures and conflicts of interest filings. And on September 1, Colorado citizens will have twenty four hour computer access to information on specific election matters.

As she told the nominating Assembly: "The twenty first century has arrived, and I say to you: this is not the time to send a beginner into the office of the Secretary of State!"

NEWS AVAILABILITY WITH BRUCE BENSON FOR COLORADO GOVERNOR

Saturday, September 24, 1994

11:20 A.M. to 11:40 A.M. MST

PURPOSE :

To support the candidacy of Bruce Benson, who is running against Roy Romer for Governor of Colorado.

BACKGROUND:

Upon arrival in Denver, you will be greeted by Bruce Benson and his wife Marcie. Benson will get on the aircraft and give you a final briefing before the news conference.

(SPECIAL NOTE:)

The Benson campaign has notified us that a story will be breaking in the next day or two regarding Benson's divorce. A local Denver television station asked the court to unseal Benson's divorce records. Most probably the judge will rule in favor of this and move to release the files Benson is expected to call for the release of the files hours before the judge rules.

We are advised that the records indicate no earthshaking revelations, but some items are described as "messy". There is no abuse or physical violence.

The Benson campaign and other media outlets feel the airing of private divorce proceedings is beyond the pale. They plan to counter-attack on the point that the divorce was a private matter. Women supporters of Benson are expected to participate in the counter-attack.

The Benson campaign is focusing its message on the theme that he is a leader who will bring a new approach at getting things done. Incumbent Gov. Roy Romer (clected in 1986) is already moving to the right on the issues of taxes, crime, and economic development.

THE TARRANCE GROUP

MEMORANDUM

TO: BENSON FOR COLORADO COMMITTEE

FROM: ED GOEAS DAVE SACKETT

RE: KEY FINDINGS FROM STATEWIDE SURVEY OF VOTER ATTITUDES IN COLORADO

DATE: AUGUST 26, 1994

The Tarrance Group is pleased to present the Benson for Colorado Committee with the key findings from a statewide survey of voter attitudes in Colorado. These key findings are drawn from telephone interviews with N = 500 "likely" registered voters throughout the state. Responses to this survey were gathered August 23-24, 1994 and the confidence interval associated with a sample of this type is  $\pm 4.5\%$ .

KEY FINDINGS

Republican challenger Bruce Benson has pulled ahead of Governor Roy Romer in a trial ballot test for Governor. Forty-seven percent (47%) of Colorado voters indicate they would vote for Benson, while only 42% indicate they would vote for Romer, and only 11% of Colorado voters are undecided.

Benson's ballot strength is even more intense than Romer's, with thirty-one percent (31%) of Colorado voters indicating that they would "definitely" vote for Benson. It is also important to note that Benson has come out of the Republican primary in a very strong position and demonstrates a partisan intensity among Republican voters that is seven points higher than Romer's partisan intensity among Democrats.

The political environment in the state is very favorable for Republicans in general, and Benson specifically. Better than four in ten Colorado voters believe that the state is "off on the wrong track", and fully fifty-five percent (55%) indicate that they disapprove of the job that President Clinton is doing. Republicans also now have an advantage over Democrats on a generic ballot for Governor.

THE TARRANCE GROUP

- Just as important, voter attitudes towards the new airport continue to worsen, with approximately six in ten Colorado voters indicate they believe it was a bad idea to build the new airport. The view that it was a bad idea to build the new airport has increased by approximately ton points over the past several months.
- Bruce Benson has seen continued improvement in both his name awareness and image ratings among Colorado voters. Benson's overall name awareness now stands at better than ninety percent (90%) in every region of the state and among all key voter groups. Benson's favorable ratings have increased by 17 points over the past two months alone and he now has a solid two to one favorable to unfavorable ratio.
- At the same time, Governor Roy Romer has experienced additional deterioration of his own image and incumbency ratings. Romer's unfavorable rating is only 15 points lower than his favorable rating and fully one-quarter of Colorado voters indicate they have a "strongly" unfavorable impression of Romer.
- More importantly, a majority of voters in Colorado indicate they do not believe Romer deserves re-election. Fully fifty-four percent (54%) of voters believe that Romer does not deserve re-election and that it is time for a new person. Romer is experiencing a collapse of the Democrat base, with a majority of voters in Denver and over one-third of registered Democrats indicating they do not think Romer deserves re-election.
- Romer's credibility on key issues is also badly strained. A majority of Colorado voters agree that Romer has not made good on his campaign promises, that eight years is more than enough time for any one person to serve as Governor, and that Romer has refused to deal with the problems at the new airport.

Bruce Benson on the Issues

Crime

- I support stiff mandatory penalties with no plea bargains for criminals who use any deadly weapon in the furtherance of the commission of a crime.
- I support the elimination of "good time" and "earned time" credits for violent and recidivist criminals.
- I will support and sign legislation that will reduce the seemingly endless cycle of appeals in death penalty cases.
- I will appoint judges who are willing to implement the death penalty.

Education

Printed on recycled paper

- I believe competition in America's higher education system has made it the finest higher education system in the world. Because the 1992 school choice initiative would have inserted competition into our public school system, I supported the initiative. Many Colorado voters felt this proposal went too far too fast. I continue to support education reform and competition. To this end we should look at a pilot voucher program, additional charter schools and alternative schools.
- I believe that the fiscal problems plaguing our public schools are not caused by a shortage of funding, but rather by too much money going into administration and not enough money going into the classroom.

Welfare Reform

- Attempts to restore the traditional values, such as hard work and individual responsibility, are certain to fail as long as we have a welfare system that emphasizes the opposite.
- One of my top priorities as governor would be the restructuring of the entire welfare system to reflect the following goals.
  - Rapid transition from the welfare roles into productive societal roles;
  - Support for traditional family structures;
  - Identification of welfare as a temporary helping hand, not a lifestyle.

Federal Mandates

- The rights of Coloradans to determine their own destinies, along with the Tenth Amendment of the U.S. Constitution, are seriously threatened by an encroaching federal government.
- As governor, I would fight federal mandates and the trend toward Washington-centered answers to Colorado problems.

P.6/14

Gun Control

- Gun control as crime control has been an unequivocal failure. An example is the recently enacted "Brady Bill," which succeeded in creating a short-term "run" on gun shops, but will have no long-term impact on crime.
- I support the Second Amendment of the U. S. Constitution, guaranteeing the right of citizens to keep and bear arms, and Article II, Section 13 of the Colorado Constitution, guaranteeing citizens the right to bear arms in defense of home, person or property.
- Under current law, law enforcement officials are able to arbitrarily decide to whom concealed carry permits are issued. I support revising the law to establish reasonable guidelines for issuing such permits.

Denver International Airport

Though I opposed construction of a new airport, DIA is now a reality and I am firmly committed to making the project work, without forcing Coloradans to bail it out through higher taxes.

Jobs, Taxes and the Economy

- Creating an environment that encourages Colorado businesses, especially the 100,000 small businesses, to expand and thrive, is the best way to ensure sustained economic health and ample job opportunity.
- Quality transportation and telecommunications networks will contribute greatly to sustained economic development, as will increased access to higher education.
- Massive public works projects may have provided a quick fix for Colorado's economic woes, but are certain to lead to long-term economic problems.
- After opposing earlier tax limitation measures, I voted for Amendment 1 in 1992 because government couldn't seem to say "no" to higher taxes. If I had been governor, Amendment 1 would not have been necessary.

- Implement effective strategies for first-time offenders. V

Death Penalty Reform

- Work with the Attomey General and the legislature to remove every V additional unnecessary delay in the appeals process.
- Work for passage of a constitutional amendment to pave the way for V enactment of an offective death penalty statute.
- Support funding to improve the Attorney General's ability to assist local V prosecutors in death penalty appeals.
- Work with Colorado's congressional delegation for the defeat of the federal legislation which, if enacted, would nullify the death penalty in the United States.
- Appoint judges who are willing to enforce the death penalty. V

Holding Judges Accountable

- A constitutional amendment to allow for the recall of judges.
- Appoint tough judges. V

Juvenile Crime - Stopping Crime Before it Starts

- Hold hardened juvenile criminals accountable for their actions by ensuring 1 an effective Youthful Offender System.
- Get "at risk" kids the help they need before its too late by coordinating 1 services, refocusing the Division of Youth Services.
- Encouraging private sector involvement.

Keeping Violent Criminals Off the Street - Prison Construction and Reform

- Tough anti-crime policies will, in the long run, lower the crime rate.
- Cut prison costs by building no-frills prisons and putting prisoners to work.

Planning for the Future

- Establish a Parole Abolishment Commission.
- Greate the Violent Criminal Prison Construction Fund to allow Colorado to save for its future prison construction needs.
- Establish a system-wide Parole Abolishment and Truth-in-Sentencing Board to apply these reforms to the entire criminal justice system.

THE BENSON WELFARE OVERHAUL SUMMARY

Give Power Back to the States

 Shift power back to the states by providing block grants of federal welfare money to the states.

Making Welfare Work

- Co-Locate social service offices in central locations to more effectively and efficiently deliver public assistance.
- Create Enterprise Opportunity Committees in every county to coordinate and identify private sector employment opportunities for welfare recipients.
- Implement mandatory Social Security Number tracking to reduce fraudulent public assistance claims.
- Test electronic debit cards for increased efficiency and control.
- Increase the asset exemption for vehicles to $5,000.00 to allow for more reliable transportation and lessen air pollution.

Six Steps to Independence

- Screen and test welfare applicants for skills and educational attainment to determine training or education needs.
- Require welfare recipients to sign a "social contract" pledging to work for their benefits.
- Hequire all able-bodied recipients to work, participate in approved job training or attend education programs within 7 days of receiving benefits.
- Begin effective job diversion programs to steer employable welfare applicants away from welfare and into jobs with job vouchers.
- Benefits will be contingent on periodic job performance reviews.
- All benefits to able-bodied adult AFDC recipients will end after 2 years of assistance.

A Culture in Crisis: Rebuilding the Welfare Family

Making Unwed Fathers Face Parental Responsibility

- Require proof of patemity in order to receive benefits.
- Unemployed and unwed fathers delinquent in child support payments will be required to perform 32 hours of community service at hard work plus eight hours of job search per week or go to jail.

- Suspend professional licenses and restrict drivers' licenses for failure to pay child support.
- Work with the Attorney General and district attomeys to improve Colorado's dismal child support enforcement and collection.

Keeping Families Together

- Eliminate the work history requirement for two parent families to encourage marriage and keep young families together.
- Exempt youth earnings so that teenagers learn work habits and are able to contribute to their families' support.
- Allow recipients to save up to $10,000 in special savings accounts with $5,000 reserved for education and medical treatment.
- $5,000 reserved for education and medical iteration.
  Require unwed teenage parents to participate in parenting classes to acquire the basic skills and information necessary for safe and
- responsible homes.
  Require unwed teenage parents to live with their parents or in a suitable
- adult supervised home.
  Eliminate increased benefits to mothers who have additional children while on AFDC.
- While on AFDC.
  Establish the Children's Service Network to ensure that benefits continue to reach children, even if their parents fail to work after the two year time limit.
  - Require childhood disease immunization to remain eligible for benefits.
- Hequire childhood disease initial benefits for one year to ease the Extend child care and health care benefits for one year to ease the transition from welfare to work.

Colorado Learnfare: Breaking the Cycle of Dependency through Education

- Children in AFDC families must attend school regularly or lose that child's portion of the family's benefit.
- Teenage parents must attend school or GED classes in order to receive their benefits.

Overhauling AFDC - The Impact On Medicaid and Food Stamps

 Food Stamp and Medicaid costs will be reduced as people move from dependence to independence through work.

SUGGESTED SUBJECTS U.S. SENATOR BOB DOLE DENVER, CO 09/24/94

* BRUCE BENSON IS A DIFFERENT KIND OF CANDIDATE. HE'S A SUCCESSFUL ENTREPRENEUR AND PHILANTHOPIST WHO CAN BRING A NEW APPROACH TO COLORADO GOVERNMENT.

* WHEN GOVERNOR ROMER SEES A PROBLEM, HE SEES AN OPPORTUNITY TO CREATE MORE GOVERNMENT, OR RAISE TAXES, OR IMPOSE MORE REGULATIONS. WHEN BRUCE BENSON SEES A PROBLEM, HE DOESN'T ALWAYS LOOK FOR A GOVERNMENT SOLUTION ... HE'LL BRING A NEW KIND OF LEADERSHIP TO THE GOVERNOR'S OFFICE.

* BRUCE BENSON HAS PROPOSED A GREAT, GET-TOUGH PLAN TO FIGHT COLORADO'S CRIME PROBLEM. UNLIKE BILL CLINTON AND ROY ROMER, BRUCE BELIEVES WE SHOULD SOLVE OUR CRIME PROBLEMS HERE IN COLORADO BY IMPLEMENTING "TRUTH IN SENTENCING, RESTRICTING PLEA BARGAINS FOR VIOLENT OFFENDERS, RESTORING THE DEATH PENALTY AS AN EFFECTIVE DETERRENT, HOLDING JUDGES ACCOUNTABLE AND GETTING "AT RISK" KIDS THE HELP THEY NEED BEFORE THEY BECOME HARDENED CRIMINALS.

* ROY ROMER RECENTLY DISCOVERED CRIME IS A PROBLEM IN COLORADO. AFTER CALLING BRUCE BENSON'S CRIME PLAN "KNEE-JERK" EARLIER IN THE CAMPAIGN, ROMER HAS NOW ADOPTED MANY OF THE PLAN'S COMPONENTS, INCLUDING TRUTH IN SENTENCING AND DEATH PENALTY REFORM.

* BRUCE BENSON HAS PROPOSED A REVOLUTIONARY OVERHAUL OF THE STATE'S WELFARE SYSTEM, BELIEVING THE WELFARE SYSTEM IS A LEADING CAUSE OF THE DISINTEGRATION OF THE AMERICAN FAMILY, COLORADO'S CRIME PROBLEMS AND DETERIORATION OF THE STATE'S EDUCATION SYSTEM.

* BRUCE BENSON'S REVOLUTIONARY APPROACH MUST BE CONTRASTED WITH GOVERNOR ROMER'S PAST OPPOSITION TO WELFARE REFORM. HE VETOED REFORM LEGISLATION IN THE EARLY 90'S, THEN APPROVED A TIMID FIVE COUNTY PILOT REFORM PROGRAM THAT TINKERS INSTEAD OF MAKING REAL CHANGE.

Benson Campaign Update for Senator Bob Dole

September 24, 1994

* Bruce Benson sought the GOP goubernatorial nomination through a somewhat unconventional process. Historically, GOP candidates in Colorado have been selected by a caucus-assembly-convention process. In an effort to bring more people into the process, Benson chose not to use this approach, and instead collected 17,000 petition signatures to secure a place on the GOP ballot. In part, this strategy was designed to appeal to the 23 percent of Colorado voters who supported Ross Perot for President in 1992.

* After winning a three way GOP primary with more than 60 percent of the vote in August, various polls show Bruce Benson running neck and neck with two term incumbent governor Roy Romer.

* Bruce Benson has focussed his campaign in two areas, namely the issues of crime, welfare reform and education, and second, on his opponent's incumbency. Benson has issued a variety of policy proposals on crime and welfare reform, and has spoken frequently about the sorry state of the state's infrastructure, federal mandates and growth.

* As for his opponent, Benson has worked to exploit the electorate's distaste for incumbents. Benson has also focussed on contrasting his opponent's record with the Benson vision.

* The Benson campaign believes Romer is very vulnerable on crime, and on his current lack of leadership on the troubled Denver International Airport project. On crime, Romer has historically taken a traditional liberal approach, ucating criminals as victims in need of rehabilitation. With respect to DIA, Romer was heavily involved in convincing voters to approve the project, but has disappeared from the scene since the project went south. Coloradans are growing ever more angry about the national embarassment DIA is causing the state.

* The Romer campaign believes Benson's positions on issues are marketable this year. Romer has been running to the right as fast as possible, adopting Benson positions on virtually every issue except school vouchers, which Benson supports and Romer opposes. They appear to acknowledge Romer won't win based on issues or incumbency, and have instead chosen to attempt to make Benson an unacceptable alternative for non-policy reasons. They have focussed their negative efforts on Benson's wealth (Romer is also a multi-millionaire), Benson's alleged effort to "buy the election" with his own money, his character, his alleged "flip-flops" on various issues and his naivete about government.

* The news media and Colorado analysts predict this will be the costlict statewide race in Colorado history, and also the dirtiest. Romer has struck the opening blow in the "skullduggery" department. Fairly good evidence suggests Romer operatives are behind a Denver TV station's effort to have the Benson divorce fil unsealed. Benson, his ex-wife and his three children have strenuously fought this effort, arguing the ex-wife and children are non-combatants and have a right to privacy. A judge ruled in favor of the TV station, and the records will probably be unsealed.

* In a strategy uncharacteristic for an incumbent, on primary night Romer challenged Benson to 30 debates around the state. The campaign then attempted to make an issue of the Benson campaign's counter-offer of 13 debates between the primary and November 8th. The end result is 13 debates are scheduled, with four complete as of this date.

* President Clinton's approval rating stands at about 30 percent in Colorado. The Benson campaign ties Romer to the Clintons at every opportunity. Coloradans are particularly concerned about the Clinton health nationalization program, the Clinton Goals 2000 educational nationalization program, and the Clinton/Babbitt Rangeland Reform program.

* The Colorado news media tends to focus on political process rather than issues.

* The Benson campaign respectfully requests Senator Dole sing Bruce Benson's praises to the maximum extent possible, and we hope the Senator will criticize our opponent to the maximum extent possible. This probably doesn't need to be said for Senator Dole, but if at all possible, any positive comments about our opponent should be avoided.

* If Senator Dole is willing, he might lament the depths to which the Romer campaign appears to have sunk in the effort to win re-election. He might suggest that prying into a candidate's private life and involving non-combatants in their dirty campaign is awful, or some such thing. He might say it will discourage good candidates from running in the future. If the Senator is willing to say this, please coordinate with Greg Sparrow prior to the news events to ensure it's still appropriate. +303-779 his document is from the collections at the Dole Archives, University of Karsas 24 http://dolearchives.ku edinson's turn us of Karsas 24 might have wanted to do a little more here is no politician I'm closer to than Bruce Benson. He lives right across the hall. The elevator has two doors. One door opens into my apartment; the other opens into his apartment.

LETTER FROM GIL SPENCER Mr. Benson jump starts the debate

It's much like living next to an interterrestrial disturbance. He was into everything — sitting on influential boards, contributing money and time to community causes. blowing into the ear of his beloved Republican Party. Making a difference. He has made enough money on his own to buy a Bahama or two and retire. But that really wasn't what he had in mind. What he had in mind was waitzing through the Republican primary and then getting it on with Roy.

And that's exactly what he did. No hands. So it's Bruce Benson, who has never run for anything, against Roy Romer who has been in the governor's office roughly forever.

In the primary, a the airpurt took a bite out of Benson - his pro-airport actions sharply contradicting his anti-airport words. The voters couldn't shave cared fless. He won going away So if was with the political junkies awaited the first Romer Benson debate. They were aware that Benson had gotten through primary debates without a scratch But they considered those debates Mickey Mouse What they wanted to know, was what Benson would do under real hattle conditions against a proven winner. Tomer opened the debate serving up what would pass for lukewarm carmeal a hap indicing preview of issues that contained zero surprises graves are chose to bold his fire and wait records as dolatenties as beinson's turn to open. He might have wanted to do a little more than Romer, maybe put a little whipped cream on the issues, make them reach out and touch someone. He didn't do that. It was Show-and-Tell time.

"To be real honest with you," Benson said, "I have a rotten driving record."

Translation: Two arrests back in the early 1980s for Driving Under the Influence (DUI), or, in barroom terms, drunken driving.

The cops gave him roadside sobriety tests. They had observed his car moving in a manner that suggested the driver might have been doing a crossword puzzle. The tests placed Benson's blood alcohol level well above the legal limit. In other words, he was smashed.

In those days prosecutors were given a lot more room — discretion — to grant leniency in DUI cases. Plea bargains were struck and the drunken-driving charges against Benson were substantially reduced.

He pled guilty to rockless driving (no one had been hurt) and was made to attend some classes for substance abuse.

In treating the debate to a glimpse of his drinking and driving history. Benson said, "I think the voters of Colorado need to know that." His campaign manager, Katy Atkinson, agreed, adding that she thought the voters would find Benson's candid admission "refreshing." And a sprinkling of political consultants viewed the Benson case strictly as a public relations issue. No surprise there

They felt he hadn't been hurt politically, and they pointed out that the arrests occurred a long time ago and that he had "come clean" and apologized, which made good sense PR wise. Who knows how voters will react — if

Who knows how voters will react — if at all — to Benson's bygone blood alcohol levels and his admission of same? The poorhouse is littered with people who bet which way the voters would jump.

But if you care to consider what Mr, Benson did in the early 1980s and what he had to say about it in 1994, forget his first DUI arrest. Put it out of your mind and concentrate on the fact a that a year and a half ister he was behind the wheel drunk again.

Subsequently, Colorado got smart and sharpened the teeth of its DUI laws. Thus, if Mr. Benson committed a second fortense now as he did in 1901, he would face a maximum sentence of one year in spirit, $1,500 fine, 120 days of public service, and loss of license. None of which would enhance a political career. Bruce Benson has distinguished himself as a citizen. As a candidate for govtrinor, he has said some things very much worth listening to. He is also a secondtime drunken driver. He knew what could happen in terms of blood and lives, and he did it again. I'm not sure that qualifies as a public relations issue.

Stumping for GOP candidate Benson at a campaign breakfast was Lamar Alexander, the former Tennessee governor who won at-tention for his education referms in g tive schools for expelled children. that state before serving as secretary of education for President. George Bush #1

Alexander said Benson would join one of a half-dozen Republican governors who solve problems at lohome instead of "trying to rein-. vent the whole United States from Washington, D.C.

Having worked closely with Romer as a fellow governor, Alexander stopped short of criticizing the Democratic incumbent.

"I know Hoy Romer well, and Trespect him both as a governor and a rerson," he said. "Unfortunately, the Democratic governors go to Washington and find their colleagues in Congress trying to reinvent government in Washington." . Benson, he added, "is the kind of governor Colorado and most

I want to look back and say we made Colorado the best place to raise a child," Romer said. "When kids are tetter off, we are li all better off."

Some of the governor's proposals aren't new. Romer said schools should be required to notify police when a'student is caught with a gun at school. He said many schools probably already do that, particularly because a new Colorado law makes it illegal for anyone yourger than 18 to possess a handgun.

"There's a lack of uniformity across the state." he said.

Romer also proposed creating coughly a dozen reform schools across the state for students expelled from traditional schools for misbehaving --- an idea he apparently resurrected from the past egislative session. Two similar pronosals, one Democratic and the other Republican, were defeated by the Legislature last spring.

"I ust don't think it's right to dump them out on the street," Romer said.

Benson has made similar statements in the past. His staff criticized the governor as a latecomer to the issue of child welfare, saying Romer has done little in his two terms as governor. and and share

"It's too bad we don't get an election every year so we can get kids taken care of," said Benson spokesman Greg Sparrow.

Romer's staff, meanwhile, blasted Benson as being "out of synch" with the ideas Alexander championed as secretary of education. In the past, Benson has been critical of "Goals 2000," a national effort to set standards for public schools. It brought together Bush and the nation's governors, who agreed on a set of national goals for education. Alexander and Romer played a key role in the meeting, Alexander defended Benson's sharp criticism of the goals. Under President Clinton and a Democratcontrolled Congress, he said, the entire agenda has become too focused on federal control of education, with such reforms as a national school board.

"It goes against everything that Bush and a bipartisan group of governors tried to do," he said. "They've turned a national movement to better schools into a federal program."

Romer, who continues to be active in the effort, disagreed.

"We opposed a lot of attempts by congressmen to put mandates in it and by and large were successful," he said. "I do not believe in federal control, and I think the bill as passed does not put control in the hands of the federal government."

"I'm honored Colin has vol-unteered to help coordinate our campaign in La Plata County," Benson said, according to the release.

From Page One!

"Bruce doesn't understand where you were eight years ago," Romer told the Western Slope crowd. "You couldn't rent a U-Haul trailer then because everybody was leaving Colorado."

At that time people just wanted some economic growth to make up for the jobs and people who had left, he said.

"We brought the economy up," Romer said, pointing to a list of 100 Western Slope firms that he said had either moved to the area or expanded in the past eight years. And, he said, Colorado's economy is now one of the strongest in the country. That's why there is a need now for smart growth, he said. ....

If Romer wants to take credit "for every single job" created dur ing his tenure, "then you should also take credit for all the problems we have in welfare, crime, roads," Benson said.

The two gubernatorial caudidates also battled over Denver International Airport.

"This is Roy Romer's baby," Benson said. Former Denver Mayor Federico Pena "dreamt it up, but Romer sold it to the state and to Adams County and Denver.

"It will be a good airport," Benson added. "but it's got a lot of problems."

Romer agreed there are problems with the baggage handling system, but said they will be solved. But building it was the right decision, he said, because "Stapleton will never be a hub of the future." Romer also said the airport

"Did he favor DIA or not?" Romer asked. "It's a question of leadership and his ability to say it straight. Leadership doesn't mean saying one thing on one side of the mountain and one thing on the other, or one thing before you're a candidate and something else when you become a candidate."

Benson maintained his position has remained consistent. "To be blunt ... when I support something I support it big. A $500 check doesn't mean that much to me."

He said he has written over 1.500 checks totaling more than $12 million supporting various causes.

Benson also said he only recalled one $500 check and the $100 check he wrote in order to attend an informational meeting on the airport at the governor's mansion.

Benson also charged that the state Health Department hasn't been doing its job during Romer's tenure in monitoring things such as the Louisiana-Pacific Corp. waferboard plant near Olathe or the now-defunct refinery west of Fruita: "

"If I was governor I'd have a health department that paid attention," he said.

He also touched on the issue of the quality of Colorado's highways.

"You can't have a great state without good roads," he said.

Romer said he sees one of the critical issues facing the whole state, and the Western Slope in particular, is that "you want to control your destiny. Station :

It's 4 years old; a mocking reference to ramors, then hot, that the governor was having a romantic affair with a high-level woman aide.

So any day now, expect to see a 1994 equivalent a "Booze Benson" button.

But that may be the worst that ever comes from GOP candidate Bruce Benson's revelation that he was arrested twice, 13 and 14 years ago, for driving under the influence.

of - Just as the Romer rumor didn't seem bdo have much effect in the 1990 campaign, the Benson revelations may not have much staying power, either.

In both cases -- Romer in 1990 and Benson in 1994 - the candidate addressed the issue squarely ._

The difference is that Benson broke the story on himself -- and it was true.

Westword, the irrepressible Denver weekly, broke the story about Romer -and it never was more than a rumor.

Westword's story wasn't so much an effort to prove or disprove the ramor, it the way people treated the governor -and the high level woman aide.

So Romer didn't get the jump on potentially damaging information, but he dealt with it openly.

Romer and his wife, Bea, held an airport news conference two days after the story appeared. Bea stood by her man. and he said, flatly, "It's not true."

The story died after about a week. In Benson's case, had the media un-carthed what he himself described as a "rotten" driving record, it probably wouldn't have gotten quite the play it did. There's a real question how relevant two old DUIs are - one in April 1980, the other in December 1981. People were less concerned about drunken driving in those days. It was easier to plea-bargain then. We should have looked, but we didn't.

Benson took that decision out of the media's hands by blurting it out as the tape started rolling for his first televise sion of how big to play it, if at all.

debate with Romer. "Blurt" is probably a poor choice of verb. It most likely was a carefully crafted decision.

Because it unfolded the way it did, the story got No. 1 play in both Denver dailies the pert day. That may seem bad fo Benson, but the splash was so big and sc bright it will burn itself out quickly.

SOME VOTERS - especially those who've lost friends or relatives to drunl drivers - will be repelled by the DUIs. Benson describes himself now as a "moderate social drinker," and some vi ers will be turned off by the fact that he didn't give it up completely. Others, though, may be more reassured by the fact that he didn't swing from one extreme to the other.

ed And others will admire his courage for coming clean. As one consultant put it, "the public won't hold you responsible for it when you bring it out yourself."

the DUIs into a gain, but he's made them less of a minus than they might have been.

for Of course, it's too late for the kind of divine intervention that drove the Romer rumor so quickly from the beadfines. Later the same day of the Romers

He said his behavior then was irresponsible, and he apologized for it. But he said he was making the voluntary disclosure — without provocation by anyone in the news media — because he didn't believe he should keep any secrets from the voters.

We appreciate his candor, although his motives clearly were to avoid any embarrassing last-minute revelation of his record in the final weeks of the campaign. Despite the motives, his disclosure was the proper thing for him to do — although we would have preferred he had shared his driving record with voters before last month's primary election.

That leaves us with only one matter to comment on --- what weight should voters assign to Benson's driving record?

When he was arrested in the early '80s, the attitudes and laws regarding drunk driving were far different from today. At the time, his charges were reduced by plea bargaining to reckless driving and driving a defective vehicle. He didn't lose his license, serve jail time or pay a hefty fine. He was required to attend substance-abuse classes, but he wasn't ordered into any alcohol-treatment program.

Benson's treatment was not uncommon at the time. He apparently didn't receive any special consideration. Since then, Colorado laws have gotten much tougher. Today, in reaction to changing public opinion, anyone charged with DUI especially on the second offense is very unlikely to get the charge reduced, would probably lose his license, is almost certain to serve some jail time and is assured of a mandatory-treatment order.

What Benson did 14 years ago was shameful and potentially deadly. It also was, unfortunately, relatively common. He didn't get favorable treatment, however lenient it may seem by today's standards. Even leaders of the Mothers Against Drunk Driving (MADD) organization said this week that, considering the climate in 1980, his record shouldn't be held against him today.

Consequently, it shouldn't weigh heavily on voters' minds. There are more important issues facing the voters of Colorado than Benson's errant judgments of more than a decade ago.

In the overall scheme of things, it's nearly comparable to Bill Clinton's admission that he smoked marijuana — regardless of whether he inhaled or not — when he was in college.

Benson was correct to disclose his drunk-driving record, and we assume it's his only big secret. But voters should consider his poor judgment then in the context of much-larger issues now.

In most situations, it would be wrong to apply today's standards to yesteryear's behavior.

Even Romer, Benson's political opponent, has said he has no intention of making Benson's DUI record a point of contention in the governor's race. We agree that, in terms of Colorado's future, there are many more-worthy issues.

ROCKY MOUNTAIN NEWS' Herrick reports that it is "unclear" whether GOP nominee Bruce Benson's admission during a live debate with Gov. Roy Romer (D) that he had two DUI convictions in the early 1980s will hurt his chances. Benson aides said "their candidate ... was not trying to hoodwink his party" with a post primary confession. GOP strategist/Benson adviser Ed Rollins: "The strategy is to inoculate against your own vulnerabilities" (9/7). Benson manager Kay Atkinson said 9/6 was "an appropriate day to do it because it was the first day of the (general election) campaign." Consultant Dick Sargent (R), whom Benson beat in the primary: "That just surprises me. If he didn't bring it up for the primary, I don't know why he brings it up for the general election." State Sen. Mike Bird (R), another Benson primary opponent who has since endorsed Benson: "Oh boy, do I have to bite my tongue. All I can say is, 'Unbelievable'" (Gavin, DENVER POST, 9/7). Benson said after the 9/6 debate "that he doesn't have a drinking problem. He said he's a 'moderate social drinker' now." Benson: "It was just a bad mistake I made. I apologize to the public. It's something I'm embarrassed about." Benson plea bargained and took classes for substance abuse, but served no jail time (Kerwin, ROCKY MOUNTAIN NEWS, 9/7).

BETTER TO GIVE THAN RECEIVE: Benson donated $465,360 to the CO GOP in '92, making him the nation's largest individual contributor of soft money at the state level. - Bruce Benson

- Revolutionize the welfare system so it's an avenue to pride and self-sufficiency and not a dead end of despair and dependency.
- Restore the concept of individual responsibility and the value of traditional family structures.
- Transform welfare programs so they offer temporary assistance, a helping hand — not a lifestyle.

Please vote for Bruce Benson, Republican candidate for governor, on August 9th, or take advantage of early voting. Call 1-800-223-6766 for more information.

Dear Friend,

Thirty-five years ago, I first came to Colorado to work on an oil rig outside Walsenburg. Times were so tough, I slept in my car. Since that time, Colorado afforded me the opportunity to build a successful business and raise three wonderful children. My father told me, "You don't just take, you have to give back." I've contributed to our state for years by leading many organizations, including the Boy Scouts. I feel there is much to be done to enhance what we love about Colorado and to improve problem areas.

This election is about our future, not our past. It's about creating a state where the dreams of our children and grandchildren can still come true. My goal is to get the job done, not to play the re-election game. It's amazing how much you can do if you don't care who gets the credit.

Career politicians pretend they have all the answers, but they're not even asking the right questions. You can't be successful in business without asking the right questions and you can't change government without asking the right questions.

We have a long road ahead of us and we won't get there without your support. Please take the time to vote — for our kids — for Colorado's future.

Thank you,

Bruce Benson

By CARL HILLIARD Associated Press Writer

DENVER (AP) The divorce records of Republican gubernatorial nominee Bruce Benson on Thursday were opened to the media, who were accused of invading the privacy of the candidate's family.

'You have violated our privacy,'' Ann Benson, the candidate's daughter, told representatives from the television station that sued to open the court records. 'Everybody in the state now knows about my life.''

Benson, in a news conference, admitted infidelity before his first marriage ended but denied ever threatening his ex-wife, Nancy, during or after their marriage.

The 1993 divorce records that ended the 30-year marriage revealed a breakup that included arguments over spending and property and a 911 call over a confrontation.

Near the end of the meeting with reporters Benson was asked whether he had been unfaithful while he was still married, and he conceded he had been. The affair with the former Marcy Head, PRESS RETURN TO CONTINUE OR ENTER A REQUEST.

now his wife, went on ``for about two years'' before he was divorced, he said.

The divorce was filed May 11, 1992. Benson married Marcy last November, a month after the divorce became final.

The extramarital activity was 'a mistake,'' he said.

"But I'm glad the results are what they are,'' he said, smiling at his wife, who was seated to his left.

Benson said it was a relief to get all aspects of the divorce off his chest, and he did not believe any of the disclosures he made would have significant impact with voters.

He did not believe it was a reflection on his character, ho added.

Ann Benson told reporters the press went too far in its probe of the divorce. Reporters violated her parents' privacy, she said, ``and you have violated our privacy too. He's the one running for governor, not me or my brothers.''

A remark in the divorce papers, suggesting Benson once threatened to harm his former wife, drew the most comment. Nancy Benson, in a statement to the court, said on one occasion Benson indicated he was 'going to kill me.''

But Benson said that was a remark he has often made in the heat of discussion, and he had never once threatened either his PRESS RETURN TO CONTINUE OR ENTER A REQUEST.

wife or his children.

'It was a statement made on the spur of the moment,'' he said. 'Threats? Never.''

His spending, as alleged in the divorce documents, came after he left the marriage with ``a few suitcases'' and some sporting equipment. He later had to buy a home for himself, clothing and other items. But the value of the home he purchased has increased significantly, he said.

And the personal wealth he acquired also went up during the separation.

It was the second time this month that revelations about Benson's personal life had intruded on his campaign to unseat two-term Democratic Gov. Roy Romer. Earlier, Benson had revealed he was arrested twice for drunken driving, in 1980 and 1981.

Romer's campaign on Thursday denied having any role in the events that led to the unsealing of the divorce records. Neither Romer nor his campaign would comment on their contents.

KUSA-TV in Denver had sued to open Benson's divorce records, and Denver District Judge Morris Ben Hoffman ruled in KUSA's favor last Friday, saying Benson and his ex-wife, who had tried PRESS RETURN TO CONTINUE OR ENTER A REQUEST.

to keep the records sealed, `failed to show their privacy interests outweigh the public interest.''

Hoffman gave the 56-year-old Denver oilman and his former wife until Thursday to appeal his order, but they did not.

The divorce settlement gave Nancy Benson more than $8.2 million, the couple's $3 million Denver foothills mansion and $250,000 Vail condo, among other things. The divorce records valued the Bensons' marital property at between $34 million and $46 million.

The Bensons have three children Ann, 24, who is volunteer coordinator for her father's campaign; David, 27, and Jim, 29.

Records showed that between the time the divorce was filed in May 1992 and Oct. 6, 1993, when it became final and was sealed, the Bensons clashed over money and property.

In one confrontation on May 18, 1993, Nancy Benson said she arrived home at the family's foothills home to see Benson and Head carting possessions away a grandfather clock, household objects, a $90,000 painting.

When she asked Benson what he was doing, he became ``hostile, insulting and threatening to me,'' Nancy Benson was quoted as saying in the divorce records. ``He began taunting me.'' PRESS RETURN TO CONTINUE OR ENTER A REQUEST.

She called police, and they detained Benson, but would not hold him because no restraining order was pending against him, the records showed.

The records also showed Benson spent an average of $14,060 per day on himself and Marcy Head during his separation from his wife, while sending Nancy Benson $25,000 monthly maintenance payments.

She had asked for $40,000 a month.

The records showed that between January 1992 and May 1993, Benson spent $130,140 on cars; $198,813 on charities; $79,640 on clothing; $42,504 on gifts; $199,195 on jewelry, and $63,432 on legal fees. He spent $27,444 on airline tickets for Marcy

Head, and loaned more than $1 million, the records showed. While the divorce settlement gave the Bensons' Denver foothills home and Vail condo to Nancy Benson, it apportioned their $600,000 Denver home and $1.8 million Vail home to Bruce Benson.

FILE No. 004 09/22 '94 17:54 ID:

September 21, 1994

TO: Senator Dole

FROM: Janet Sena

SUBJECT: Colorado Issues Update

The following two task forces are receiving most of the attention in Colorado:

AIR QUALITY RELATED VALUES - A Romer appointed task force that is looking a Colorado "dirty air" as it effects Class I Wilderness. Kicked off by National Park Service to discuss industry emissions on wilderness area, this group will review and make recommendations concerning the impact of emissions on wildlife areas to the air quality control commission.

AIR VISIBILITY (PM10) TASK FORCE - Colorada must complete a state implementation plan to meet Clean Air Act standards. This group was put together to review approaches on how to meet those standards. Restrictions may include less sanding in the winter time, more carpooling, use of natural gas instead of coal.

TO: Senator Dole

FROM: Mike Torrey

SUBJECT: Colorado trip

PRIVATE PROPERTY RIGHTS...Senator Brown has been a big supporter of yours on this issue. Private property continues to be the rallying cry of the West. The latest action was your modified amendment attached to the Safe Drinking Water Act. This amendment would require agencies to conduct, "takings impact assessments" when promulgating regulations. It is not likely the amendment will survive conference.

RANGELAND REFORM...Obviously a big issue in Colorado. The deadline for submitting comments on the Administration's proposed regulations regarding the management of western lands was September 9. The Administration now has 60 days before they issue final regulations. Chances are Clinton will wait until December to do so (after the election). A few of the negatives of the proposal include:

o The proposal is more government with less incentives for cooperative involvement with the private sector.

o No definition of the proper function of an eco-system.

o Funds which would normally go towards rangeland improvement will now go for riparian and wildlife functions.

o Federal authority over water is still unclear.

BOTTOMLINE -- The current regulations are working just fine. This Administration has caved in to special interest groups such as the Sierra Club in putting together this package. This action discounts the ranchers as unimportant.

KANSAS -- COLORADO WATER DISPUTE...There has been ongoing litigation over the last several decades regarding the flow of water from Colorado to Kansas in the Arkansas river. This is the 3rd lawsuit Kansas has filed. A Special Master appointed by the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that in fact Colorado was taking water from Kansas in the form of groundwater pumping. If this ruling is upheld, Colorado will have to reduce their groundwater pumping. The U.S. Supreme Court will consider the special master's recommendation sometime next year. It can accept, modify or change the master's recommendation. Following their decision, the issue will then go to court which could last 4-5 years. Colorado has put together a task force which is investigating ways to resolve this issue. You may be asked to join Senator Brown in chairing a negotiationg session to resolve this matter and avoid the expensive court system.

BOTTOMLINE -- AG Stephan has said he would be willing to listen to any offers from Colorado. So far they has declined to make any. The legally correct procedure is to go through the courts. Kansas is afraid a Congressional negotiating session would jeopardize the situation.

MEMORANDUM FOR SENATOR DOLE

FROM:

Nelson Rockefeller 71AR

SUBJECT: COLORADO WELFARE REFORM EFFORTS

Enacted Reform:

Under Governor Romer's (D) stewardship, Colorado received an approved waiver on January 12, 1994 entitled Colorado Personal Responsibility and Employment Program (CPREP). Two major provisions are:

- Time Limits Establish a 2-year limitation for AFDC eligibility for employable recipients, if not employed or in training, with JOBS exemptions.
- * "cash out" AFDC, food stamps, and child care benefits into a consolidated benefits package.

Source: CRS 94-183 EPW

Proposed Reform:

Republican Gubernatorial candidate Bruce Benson, ex-CO GOP Chair, proclaims this waiver does not go far enough and suggests Romer is behind the reform wave. Benson attempts to sharply differentiate himself with the waiver. In his July 19, 1994 paper, "Bruce Benson's Plan to Overhaul Welfare", among other things the following is offered:

- Time Limits All benefits to able-bodied adult AFDC recipients will end after 2 years of assistance.
- * Block Grant Shift power back to the states by providing block grants of federal welfare money to the states. (similar to Faircloth bill)
- Paternity establishment Require proof of paternity in order to receive benefits.

A two page Benson welfare reform fact sheet is attached. Senator Brown's welfare reform bill does not contain these three Benson provisions listed above. However, the remainder of Benson's plan is largely similar to Senator Brown's bill.

Recent Controversy:

"Rocky Mountain News", dated September 19, 1994, reported that during a recent Benson / Romer debate Benson stated "'... disruptive children distract both teachers and fellow students'. And, he said, 'a lot' of those kids come from welfare families. 'Nobody has any statistics, but a lot of these people are coming out of the welfare system.'"

cc. Sheila Burke

THE BENSON WELFARE OVERHAUL SUMMARY

Give Power Back to the States

Shift power back to the states by providing block grants of federal welfare money to the states.

Making Welfare Work

- Co-Locate social service offices in central locations to more effectively and efficiently deliver public assistance.
- Create Enterprise Opportunity Committees in every county to coordinate and identify private sector employment opportunities for welfare recipients.
- Implement mandatory Social Security Number tracking to reduce fraudulent public assistance claims.
- Test electronic debit cards for increased efficiency and control.
- Increase the asset exemption for vehicles to $5,000.00 to allow for more reliable transportation and lessen air pollution.

Six Steps to Independence

- Screen and test welfare applicants for skills and educational attainment to determine training or education needs.
- Require welfare recipients to sign a "social contract" pledging to work for their benefits.
- Require all able-bodied recipients to work, participate in approved job training or attend education programs within 7 days of receiving benefits.
- Begin effective job diversion programs to steer employable welfare applicants away from welfare and into jobs with job vouchers.
- Benefits will be contingent on periodic job performance reviews.
- All benefits to able-bodied adult AFDC recipients will end after 2 years of assistance.

A Culture in Crisis: Rebuilding the Welfare Family

Making Unwed Fathers Face Parental Responsibility

- Require proof of paternity in order to receive benefits.
- Unemployed and unwed fathers delinquent in child support payments will be required to perform 32 hours of community service at hard work plus eight hours of job search per week or go to jail.

> OVER

- Suspend professional licenses and restrict drivers' licenses for failure to pay child support.
- Work with the Attorney General and district attorneys to improve Colorado's dismal child support enforcement and collection.

Keeping Families Together

- Eliminate the work history requirement for two parent families to encourage marriage and keep young families together.
- Exempt youth earnings so that teenagers learn work habits and are able to contribute to their families' support.
- Allow recipients to save up to $10,000 in special savings accounts with $5,000 reserved for education and medical treatment.
- Require unwed teenage parents to participate in parenting classes to acquire the basic skills and information necessary for safe and responsible homes.
- Require unwed teenage parents to live with their parents or in a suitable adult supervised home.
- Eliminate increased benefits to mothers who have additional children while on AFDC.
- Establish the Children's Service Network to ensure that benefits continue to reach children, even if their parents fail to work after the two year time limit.
- Require childhood disease immunization to remain eligible for benefits.

 Extend child care and health care benefits for one year to ease the transition from welfare to work.

Colorado Learnfare: Breaking the Cycle of Dependency through Education

- Children in AFDC families must attend school regularly or lose that child's portion of the family's benefit.
- Teenage parents must attend school or GED classes in order to receive their benefits.

Overhauling AFDC - The Impact On Medicaid and Food Stamps

 Food Stamp and Medicaid costs will be reduced as people move from dependence to independence through work.

The Honorable Robert Dole United States Senate 141 Hart Senate Office Building Washington, D.C. 20510

Dear Bob,

As you may know, I recently released a proposal for overhauling the welfare system in Colorado. A copy is enclosed for your review and consideration. I am very interested in your thoughts on the issue of welfare and particularly your opinions about the overhaul I have advocated in my proposal.

My plan has been derived from a careful study of successful welfare reform programs enacted in other states. A couple of these changes have been incorporated into Colorado's too-little-too-late pilot program. The time for timidity and pilot programs is past. We need bold leadership in order to overhaul our welfare system and, as governor, I intend to provide it.

Thank you for taking the time to review my proposal. If you have any ideas on how it can be improved, please let me know.

MEMORANDUM FOR SENATOR DOLE http://dolearchives.ku.edu

FROM: Sheila Burke Nelson Rockefeller 7.4.8.

SUBJECT: Welfare Reform Update -- September 15, 1994

Talking Points

- 1. While we are pleased that President Clinton has taken a first step, we have real differences with his approach.
- 2. Republicans believe welfare should be transitional support towards private sector jobs, not unending government-sponsored make-work.
- 3. Cash welfare assistance should be time-limited -- that means states should have the authority to say to able-bodied recipients, "two years and you're off."
- 4. In our view, welfare reform means reducing costs by increasing the self-sufficiency of those in need.
- 5. States must have the flexibility they need to administer programs that serve their citizens best, not a one-size-fits-all approach from Washington.
- 6. And, we feel very strongly that real reform should not reward out-of-wedlock births, and that welfare should not be a magnet to attract aliens to the United States.
- 7. The Clinton plan gives welfare recipients two years of benefits before any work requirement is imposed, and imposes time limits and work requirements on only about 20% of recipients. Under the Clinton plan, after two years of welfare checks, recipients could be indefinitely supported by a government-subsidized paycheck.

Senate -- Finance Committee is not expected to take up any action on welfare reform this year. Sen. Moseley-Braun has a bill, S. 922, on Child Support Enforcement that presently is on the Senate Calendar #604. She wants to pass it this year. It is unclear whether it will pass. Sen. Brown is a co-sponsor. The bill requires that one state must honor another states child support enforcement judicial orders.

House -- The Democrats on Ways and Means do not plan to take action this year. Child support enforcement will not be voted on separately. When Republicans present their "Contract for America" on the Capitol steps, a new welfare reform bill will be on the list as number three, after a crime bill #1 and a budgetary bill #2. The new bill is more conservative than H.R. 3500, the Ways and Means Committee bill, but less conservative than the Talent-Hutchinson bill. Listed below are major provisions in the new bill that are different from H.R. 3500.

- 1. AFDC, Food Stamps and SSI will no longer be an entitlement and will be subject to a cap.
- States can not give AFDC to illegitimate kids whose single mothers are under 18. However, States have the option to pass their own law and cut illegitimate kids off AFDC if their mothers are 18, 19 and 20.
- The JOBS program is entirely reorganized with the emphasis on mandatory work.

COLORADO/BRUCE BENSON--CRIME

Attached is a summary of Bruce Benson's crime-fighting plan for Colorado.

Benson's top priority is to "end parole and establish truthin-sentencing for violent offenders." Benson proposes to require violent offenders to serve 100% of their sentences, by eliminating the policy of granting "good time" or "earned time" credits.

Benson proposes to fund prison construction by "squeezing every inefficiency out of the Department of Corrections" and then "looking at the rest of the budget." According to Benson: "With less than five percent of the state budget being used to keep violent and repeat offenders off the streets and away from our families, I think justice demands a reordering of our priorities." Benson does not propose to raise taxes.

Colorado Statistics

In fiscal year 1991, there were 204,000 crime reported in Colorado, 49,300 felony arrests, 10,282 felony convictions, and only 3,494 commitments to prison. A staggering 6,787 convicted felons were not sentenced to any prison time.

On average, convicted felons in Colorado serve less than one-half of their sentences before they are eligible for parole.

From 1987 through 1993, there were 1,274 murders in Colorado. Yet, there are only 3 murderers on Colorado's death row and the Colorado death penalty has not been enforced in more than 20 years.

Some Points

- * The centerpiece of the Congressional Republican anticrime plan is truth-in-sentencing for first-time violent offenders. This can only be accomplished if there is an effective partnership between the federal and state governments.
- * Unfortunately, the crime bill, as passed, proposes truthin-sentencing for second-time violent offenders.
- * In addition, there's no guarantee that a single dime of the $30 billion crime bill will be used to build a single brick-and-mortar prison cell. All of the so-called prison funds can be spent on prison "alternatives," such as half-way houses and juvenile detention centers.

D. Shea

THE BENSON CRIME PACKAGE SUMMARY

Do the Crime, Do the Time

- End parele and establish truth in sentencing for violent offenders.
- Appoint tough parole board.
- Limit plea bargaining for violent offenders.
- Reduce delay in the trial process.
- Develop an implementation plan for "truth in sentencing" for career criminals
- Implement effective strategies for first-time offenders.

Death Penalty Re orm

- Work which the Attorney General and the legislature to remove every additional unnecessary delay in the appeals process.
- Work for passage of a constitutional amendment to pave the way for enactment of an effective death penalty statute.
- Support funding to improve the Attomey General's ability to assist local proseculors in death penalty appeals.
- Work who Colorado's congressional delegation for the defeat of the federal egislation which, if enacted, would nullify the death penalty in the United states. Recial Justice Act
  - Appoint udges who are willing to enforce the death penalty.

Holding Judges / countable

- A const utional amendment to allow for the recall of judges.
- Appoint lough judges.

Juvenile Crime - topping Crime Before it Starts

- Hold he dened juvenile criminals accountable for their actions by ensuring an effective Youthful Offender System.
- Get "at risk" kids the help they need before its too late by coordinating service, refocusing the Division of Youth Services.
- Encour ging private sector involvement.

Kenning Violent Comman Off the Street - Prison Construction and Rearm

- Tough an crime policies will, in the long run, lower the crime rate.
- Cut priso costs by building no-frills prisons and putting prisoners to work.

Planning for the Fillure

- Establish > Parole Abolishment Commission.
- Create the Violent Criminal Prison Construction Fund to allow Colorado to save for the future prison construction needs.
- Establish a system-wide Parole Abolishment and Truth-in-Sentencing Board to apply these reforms to the entire criminal justice system.

REPUBLICAN CRIME BILL

DOLE INTRODUCES "CRIME CONTROL IMPROVEMENT ACT": EFFORT TO STRIP PORK, BEEF UP PENALTIES IN JUST-SIGNED BILL

Instead of signing the so-called crime bill, President Clinton should have used today's White House ceremony to send the bill back to Congress marked with four simple letters: V.E.T.O. Veto.

The President should have told Congress to cut out the billions and billions of dollars in wasteful social spending, toughen up the penalties, and send him a new-and-improved crime bill that matches his own tough-on-crime rhetoric.

Republican Tough-On-Crime Measures

And that's exactly what Senate Republicans tried to do last month, when we were ready to offer a series of ten amendments...all designed to improve the crime bill by stripping out the pork and toughening up the weakest parts of the watereddown conference report.

Republicans tried to save the taxpayers nearly $5 billion by cutting such phony "crime-fighting" measures as the Local Partnership Act, the Model Intensive Grants Program, the National Community Economic Partnership...even something called the "Ounce of Prevention" Program, which in reality is not an ounce, but a multi-million dollar ton of pure, unadulterated pork-barrel spending.

Republicans sought to establish mandatory minimum penalties for those vicious criminals who use a gun in the commission of a crime and who sell illegal drugs to children..

Republicans tried to ensure the swift deportation of illegal aliens who have committed violent crimes while in the United States.

Republicans attempted to tighten up the crime bill's prison language so that funds will be used to build "brick and mortar" prison cells, rather than warm-and-fuzzy prison "alternatives" such as "half-way houses" and "juvenile detention centers." Believe it or not, there's no guarantee that one dime of the crime bill's $30 billion will be used to build a single prison cell.

And, last month, Republicans sought to ensure that firsttime violent offenders are kept behind bars by encouraging states to adopt real, meaningful truth-in-sentencing reform.

Although a full two weeks have elapsed since the Senate's passage of the conference report and today's signing ceremony, Republicans were nonetheless blocked--shut out--from using just several hours to debate our ten amendments, toughen up the crime bill in the process, and potentially save the taxpayers nearly $5 billion.

So-Called Crime Bill: Expensive Lesson for Americans So, today's signing ceremony may be a legislative victory for President Clinton, but it's a very expensive lesson for the American people.

The American people aren't dumb. They know that the crime bill is more hype than tough-on-crime substance. They know that it fully funds only 20,000 new police officers, not the 100,000 claimed by the administration.

And the American people understand that the most effective way to prevent crime is not with the pork-barrel, but with the prison cell.

Although Senate Republicans came up a bit short last month, this temporary set-back doesn't mean we've given up. On the contrary: Republicans will continue to push ahead--with greater effort and with even greater resolve--until the American people get the kind of tough, no-nonsense, crime-lighting plan they deserve...and one that his four of the content of the content of the content of the content of the second of

Crime Control Improvement Act: Incorporates 10 GOP Provisions That's why I am introducing a bill today--the Crime Control Improvement Act--that incorporates all ten amendments proposed by Republicans during the debate last month: a $5 billion cut in Republicans during the debate last month: a $5 billion cut in steful social spending. Tough mandatory minimum penalties for mose who use a gun while committing a crime. Tough mandatory minimums for those who peddle drugs to minors and employ minors to sell drugs. The swift deportation of criminal aliens. And real truth-in-sentencing for first-time violent offenders, not for the second-time offenders, as the crime bill now provides.

The Senate should have adopted these amendments more than two weeks ago. The crime bill would have been vastly improved as a result...and the American people wouldn't be so skeptical today of the overblown claims made by President Clinton and by the bill's most ardent supporters.

No doubt about it, the Senate missed a golden opportunity by preventing Republicans from offering our amendments. But one lost opportunity doesn't mean we shouldn't keep on trying....and that's exactly what Republicans intend to do in the weeks and months ahead.

PROPOSED TEN REPUBLICAN AMENDMENTS--August 25, 1994

* Four amendments striking approximately $5 billion in "social spending" from the conference report (excluding Violence against Women Act and funding for federal and state prison drug treatment).

--Amendment One: Strike Local Partnership Act

Savings: $1.62 billion

--Amendment Two: Strike Model Intensive Grants

Savings: $625.5 million

--Amendment Three: Strike Local Crime Prevention Block Grants; Family and Community Endeavor Schools; Community-Based Justice Grants; Urban Recreation; Assistance for Delinquent and At-Risk Youth; and Police Recruitment

Savings: $734.5 million

--Amendment Four: Strike National Community Economic Partnership; Community Schools; Ounce of Prevention; Family Unity Demonstration Project; Gang Resistance Education and Training; and Drug Courts

--Savings: $1.99 billion

Tighten prison language:

- --elimination of_reverter clause, thereby ensuring that funds remain allotted for truth-in-sentencing
- --elimination of "correctional plan" language that. unnecessarily burdens state prison administrators
- --ensure that prison funding will go to build "brick-andmortar" prison cells, not just prison "alternatives"

--truth-in-sentencing for first-time violent offenders

- * Simpson amendment expediting criminal alien deportation.
- * Gramm/D'Amato mandatory minimum penalties for gun crimes.
- Mandatory minimum penalties for selling drugs to minors.
- * Mandatory minimum penalties for employing minors to sell drugs.
- * Drop mandatory minimum repeal. Substitute Senate-passed proposal with a requirement that federal prosecutors have a role in the decision to deviate from the mandatory minimum.

THE CRIME CONTROL IMPROVEMENT ACT

Introduced by Senators Dole, Hatch, Thurmond, and Simpson

SECTION-BY-SECTION ANALYSIS

Section One. Short Title. The Act may be cited as the "Crime Control Improvement Act of 1994."

Section Two. Elimination of the Model Intensive Grant Program. This section strikes the $625.5 million Model Intensive grant program, contained in subtitle C of Title III of the Violent Crime Control and Law Enforcement Act of 1994. Under this program, 15 cities are hand-picked by the Administration and given complete discretion over how to spend the funding. Program funds may be spent for any purpose loosely tied to crime reduction. The Model Cities Intensive grant program was not part of the Senate-passed crime bill.

Section Three. Elimination of Local Partnership Grant Program. This section strikes the $1.62 billion "Local Partnership Act," contained in subtitle J of Title III of the Violent Crime Control and Law Enforcement Act of 1994. The Local Partnership Act was not part of the Senate-passed crime bill.

Section Four. Elimination of House-passed Social Spending. This section strikes approximately $737 million in social spending programs, contained in subtitles B, D, G, H, O, and Q of Title III of the Violent Crime Control and Law Enforcement Act of 1994. The programs eliminated by this section include the Local Crime Prevention Block Grant program, the Family and Endeavor Schools program, the Community-based Justice Grants program, the Urban Recreation program, the At-Risk Youth program, and the Police Recruitment program.

Section Five. Elimination of Senate-passed Social Spending. This section strikes over $1.9 billion in social spending programs, contained in subtitles A, D, K, S, and X of Title III and Title V of the Violent Crime Control and Law Enforcement Act of 1994. All of the programs eliminated by this section had passed the Senate as part of the Senate crime bill. However, in some instances the authorization levels for the programs were increased in conference. The programs eliminated by this section include the National Community Economic Partnership, the Community Schools program, the Ounce of Prevention program, the Family Unity Demonstration Project, the Gang Resistance Education and Training program, and the Drug Courts program.

Section Six. Prison Grants. This section amends subtitle A of Title II of the Violent Crime Control and Law Enforcement Act as follows:

* The Act currently allows prison funds to be spent on alternative correctional facilities in order "to free conventional prison space." This section requires that prison grants be spent on conventional prisons to house violent offenders, not on alternative facilities.

* This section removes from the Act a provision which would have conditioned state receipt of the prison grants on adoption of a comprehensive correctional plan that would include diversion programs, jobs skills programs for prisoners, and post-release assistance. Accordingly, these grants will be used exclusively to build and operate prisons.

* This section also amends the Act to condition prison grants on state adoption of truth-in-sentencing for first-time violent offenders. The Act only requires that states adopt truth-in-sentencing for second-time violent offenders.

* Finally, this section amends the Act by deleting a "reverter clause" which provides that truth-in-sentencing grants that are not quickly spent will revert back to non-incentive grants. This reverter clause essentially removes any incentive for states to adopt truth-in-sentencing reform.

Section Seven. Increased Mandatory Minimum Sentences for Criminals Using Firearms. This section establishes a mandatory minimum penalty of 10 years' imprisonment for anyone who uses or carries a firearm during a crime of violence or drug trafficking crime. If the firearm is discharged, the person faces a mandatory minimum penalty of 20 years' imprisonment. If death results, the penalty is death or life imprisonment.

Section Eight. Mandatory Minimum Prison Sentences for Those who Use Minors in Drug Trafficking Activities. This section establishes a mandatory minimum sentence of 10 years' imprisonment for anyone who employs a minor in drug trafficking activities. The section also establishes a sentence of mandatory life imprisonment for a second offense.

Section Nine. Mandatory Minimum Sentences for Those who Sell Illegal Drugs to Minors. This section establishes a mandatory minimum sentence of 10 years' imprisonment for anyone 21 years of age or older who sells drugs to a minor. The section also establishes a sentence of mandatory life imprisonment for a second offense.

Section Ten. Deportation of Criminal Aliens. This section provides for the expedited deportation of non-permanent resident aliens convicted of certain violent felonies upon completion of the prison sentence. The amendment would also allow federal judges to enter deportation orders at the time of sentencing. Once the sentence is served, the criminal is automatically deported.

This section, originally proposed by Senator Simpson, was included in the Senate-passed crime bill.

Section Eleven. Flexibility in Application of Mandatory Minimum Sentence Provisions in Certain Circumstances. The Senate-passed crime bill contained a narrowly circumscribed mandatory minimum reform measure that returned a small degree of discretion to the federal courts in the sentencing of truly first-time, non-violent drug offenders. To deviate from the mandatory minimum, the court would have to find that the defendant did not finance the drug sale, did not sell the drugs, and did not act as a leader or organizer.

This section restores the Senate-passed measure and also adds a section ensuring that the so-called "safety valve" will not be abused by the courts. This added improvement requires certification by federal prosecutors that the defendant cooperated with law enforcement authorities. MEMORANDUM TO THE REPUBLICAN LEADER

FROM: David Taylor Junc

SUBJECT: S. 993, Kempthorne/Glenn Federal Mandate Accountability and Reform Act -- UPDATE

Kempthorne is looking for an opportunity to get a vote on S. 993 which was unanimously approved by the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee. One option would be to propound a unanimous consent request to take this up and have Mitchell object. Another would be to offer the bill to an appropriations conference report that has amendments in disagreement. The House will not take up this measure unless it passes the Senate.

A one-page summary of the bill and a list of endorsements are attached.

SUGGESTED TALKING POINTS

- FOR YEARS, THE DEMOCRAT-CONTROLLED CONGRESS HAS ATTEMPTED TO HIDE THE TRUE COST OF THEIR EFFORTS TO EXPAND THE REACH OF THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT.
- THEY DO IT BY PASSING LAWS THAT WREAK HAVOC ON STATE AND LOCAL BUDGETS BY GIVING THEM NEW RESPONSIBILITIES BUT LITTLE IF ANY OF THE MONEY THEY NEED TO COMPLY. THE PRESIDENT TRIED TO DO THE SAME THING ON HEALTH CARE BY IMPOSING A "MANDATE" ON EMPLOYERS.
- THE PRACTICE OF UNFUNDED MANDATES MUST BE STOPPED.
- DESPITE 63 SENATE COSPONSORS (INCLUDING BOB SMITH AND JUDD GREGG), UNANIMOUS APPROVAL IN COMMITTEE, ENDORSEMENTS BY PRESIDENT CLINTON, THE BIPARTISAN NATIONAL GOVERNORS ASSOCIATION, THE NATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF COUNTIES, AND THE NATIONAL LEAGUE OF CITIES, THE DEMOCRAT LEADERSHIP IN CONGRESS HAS BLOCKED EFFORTS TO BRING THIS ISSUE TO A VOTE.
- IF I BECOME MAJORITY LEADER, WE WILL WORK TO PUT AN END TO THE PRACTICE OF UNFUNDED FEDERAL MANDATES.

S.993, Kempthorne/Glenn Federal Mandate Accountability and Reform Act

This legislation has been unanimously approved by the Senate Government Affairs Committee. Currently, states and local governments can have unfunded mandates imposed against them without ever knowing the cost of the mandate and without a roll call vote by the Senate on the mandate's imposition. S.993 reforms this by providing unprecedented protection from unfunded mandates for state and local governments, including the following:

1. Legislation imposing mandates greater than $50 million in any fiscal year on state and local governments can be considered by the Senate only if it:

 Contains a Congressional Budget Office identification, description and estimate of the cost of any mandate in the bill on state or local governments.

- Authorizes funds in the bill to fully pay for the cost of mandate.
- o Identifies the funds in the bill to be used to pay for the mandate.
- 2.
  - . The Congressional Budget Office must consult with state and local elected officials to determine the cost of mandates on state and local governments. Federal agencies must also consult in writing federal regulations that affect state and local governments.
  - 3. Legislation that does not meet these requirements will be blocked from Senate consideration by a point of order.
  - 4. This point-of-order can only be overridden in the Senate by an on-the-record roll call majority vote. The Senator who wants to impose the mandate must go to the Senate floor to argue that the unfunded mandate is more important than its cost to state and local governments.
  - 5. The authorizing bill must include payment from the Federal Government of any mandate over $50 million dollars in any fiscal year. The entire amount of the mandate for the life of the bill must be included (not just the amounts over $50 million).
  - 6. The bill provides for new CBO analysis of private sector mandates over $200 million.

This bill has been enthusiastically endorsed by: * U.S. Conference of Mayors * National Assn. of Counties * National League of Cities * National Governors Assn. * National Conference of State Legislatures * Council of State Governments * National School Boards Association * U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

Endorsements For The Kempthorne-Glenn Unfunded Mandate Reform Act

With the support of 63 Senate co-sponsors, the Senate Government Affairs Committee unanimously approved S. 993, the Kempthorne-Glenn bill reforming the imposition of unfunded mandates on state and local governments. This bill is strongly endorsed by:

"I support the modified Glenn-Kempthorne initiative and I agree with Senator Dole – we ought to pass it, and we ought to pass it now...I think it is a very important thing to do." — President Bill Clinton

"If there is one thing that Congress could do to restore balance to the federal-state relationship, it would be to pass the Kempthorne-Glenn bill now..."

Senator Bob Dole, Republican Leader

"On behalf of The United States Conference of Mayors, I am writing to express my strong support for the Kempthorne-Glenn Bill, S. 993, and to urge immediate passage of the legislation... "This consensus bill...is strong, serious mandate reform. It requires Congress to 1) know how much a new mandate will cost state and federal government; 2) agree to pay for the costs of the mandates; and 3) go on record as recommending tax increases or spending reductions in other programs to pay for the mandates. I truly believe that the light shed by these three requirements will turn the tide against new unfunded federal mandates."

Victor Ashe, Mayor, Knoxville, TN and President, Conference of Mayors

"The immediate passage of this legislation is a top legislative priority for counties across the country...Last week (at our) annual conference...over 4,500 delegates attended from counties in almost every state...(the) full membership unanimously endorsed a resolution urging Congress to pass S. 993 at once."

Ronald Franke, Commissioner, Marion County, OR and President, National Association of Counties

"The National League of Cities...are doing everything in our power to...pass the bill in this session..(it's) responsible, politically viable legislation that offers significant reform which will benefit every city and town and consequently every citizen in the nation."

Sharpe James, Mayor, Newark, NJ and President, National League of Cities

PRINTED ON ARCYCLED PAPER

"I am delighted that the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee voted to pass the Kempthorne-Glenn bill last week...Hopefully, a concerted push by the Big 7 (groups representing state and local officials) can lead to a Senate floor vote in the near future." -- George Voinovich, Governor of Ohio

"S.993 creates, for the first time, a mandate score card on every new cost Congress imposes on state and local governments...anything that would cause these governments to raise taxes or cut services...This is the taxpayer protection act against hidden or new trickle-down taxes via federal mandates. That's accountability."

- Ray Scheppach, Executive Director of the National Governor's Association.

"As Mayor of the City of St. Louis, Missouri, I write you to urge immediate action on S. 993, the Federal Mandate Accountability and Reform Act of 1994...This legislation is critical to America's cities and states...(which) are entitled to know how much a federal mandate will cost; that Congress will agree to pay for the costs of the mandates and go on record as recommending tax increases or spending reductions in other programs to pay for the new mandates."

Freeman R. Bosley, Jr., Mayor, St. Louis, MO

"Today, school children throughout the country are facing the prospect of reduced classroom instruction because the federal government requires, but does not fund services or programs that local school boards are directed to implement.

"On behalf of more than 95,000 local school board members nationwide, (I)...offer strong support for S. 993. This legislation would provide much needed relief to school districts which must spend billions of local tax dollars every year to comply with unfunded federal mandates."

Michael A. Resnick, Senior Associate Director National School Board Association

"I urge...immediate action to schedule S. 993 for debate on the Senate floor". -- Marc Moral, Mayor, New Orleans, LA

"This bill will, for the first time, force members to be accountable for their actions...we believe this legislation will have a significant impact on curtailing the number of future unfunded mandates that Congress enacts."

> Yvonne Brathwaite Burke, Supervisor Los Angeles County, CA Supervisor

"The basic problem of unfunded mandates is so obvious it should not need a law. But it does, and Glenn-Kempthorne meets that need."

Editorial, New York Times

"This vital piece of legislation deserves passage." — Editorial, Dallas Morning News

"Its passage (S. 993) would mark a fundamental change in the way Congress does business by requiring senators to say how their measure would be paid for anytime the cost is more than $50 million a year. If lawmakers don't identify costs and sources of funding, the bill would be ruled out of order and couldn't be considered, except by a recorded majority vote.

Thus the proposal would stop Congress from imposing costly regulations on states and localities unless it is willing to send along a check. These regulations, called unfunded mandates, are the No. 1 problem undermining the fiscal health of local governments. Curbing them is a measure much needed and long overdue...

"If the full Senate and the House don't get the message before Election Day to stop spending money they don't have, then voters will have a chance to deliver it at the ballot box." — Editorial, The Idaho Statesman

CAMPAIGN FINANCE REFORM

The Senate passed a campaign finance "reform" bill in June 1993. The vote was 60-38. The House passed its own bill in November 1993. Now, ten months later, we still don't have a conference report. This is Democrat gridlock.

After the Senate passed its bill last year, seven Republican Senators wrote to you, reaffirming "nine key principles" and stating that "if the House of Representatives passes legislation that creates different standards for itself and fails to address any of the nine original principles..., we will take any step necessary to prevent this bill from becoming law." The seven Republican Senators are Chafee, Cohen, Durenberger, Jeffords, Kassebaum, McCain, and Pressler.

The House and Senate have passed bills creating different standards for each body. For example:

- * The Senate bill eliminates all political action committees (with a $1,000 fall-back if the PAC-ban is declared unconstitutional). The House bill maintains the current $5,000 PAC contribution limit with a very flexible aggregate cap of $200,000.
- * The Senate bill prohibits candidates from accepting outof-state contributions at any time prior to the 2-year period immediately preceeding an election. The House bill does not distinguish between in-state and out-ofstate contributions.
- * The Senate bill bans bundling. The House bill bans bundling, except by PACs that are not connected to groups that lobby Congress. This exception effectively exempts "Emily's List."

Taxpayer-Financing of Campaigns

One of the nine principles cited by the Republican Senators reads as follows:

"Avoid taxpayer financing of campaigns. At a time when the federal government is calling on Americans to make sacrifices to reduce the deficit, Congress shouldn't create a new entitlement program for politicians. We are not opposed to spending limits, but it might not be necessary to swallow the bitter pill of taxpayer financing to get them. Now is the time for creative proposals that test the boundaries of Buckley v. Valeo and provide for voluntary spending limits without dipping into the federal Treasury."

The House bill violates this principle by allowing each House candidate to receive up to $200,000 in the form of "voter communication vouchers." The House bill does not specify how these vouchers will be financed.

The Senate bill also contains some taxpayer-financing of campaigns. If a candidate's opponent exceeds the spending limit, the candidate is entitled to an offsetting subsidy. Candidates who abide by the spending limits may also receive subsidies to offset independent expenditures. These subsidies are financed by 1) repealing the tax deduction for lobbying expenses and 2) imposing a "Speech Tax" (an Exon-Durenberger proposal) on candidates who exceed the spending limit.

Without a conference report, it's impossible to perform an accurate cost analysis. The Democrats, however, estimate that the Senate and House bills will cost the taxpayers $90 million per election cycle. The numbers are probably much, much higher.
