BOB DOLE KANSAS

Veterans Day, 1995

Dear Fellow Veteran:

When General George Marshall was once asked during World War II if America had a "secret weapon," he responded by saying that, "America's secret weapon is the best darned kids in the whole world."

What was true then has been true throughout this century. Today, America is strong and secure, and much of the world is free, only because of the courage and sacrifice of "the best darned kids in the whole world."

I join with all Americans on this Veterans Day in saluting the courage and commitment of all those who served our country in the armed forces. Let us also remember that the best way to honor our veterans is to ensure the survival of the principles of freedom and democracy for which they fought.

Elizabeth joins with me in extending our thanks to America's veterans and their families.

Kindly make your plans now to attend the

TENTATIVE 1996 PRESIDENTIAL PRIMARY/CAUCUS DATES

1996 REPUBLICAN NATIONAL CONVENTION PRELIMINARY DELEGATE ALLOCATION

The attached information on the 1996 Presidential primaries and Republican National Convention was compiled in response to numerous requests for this information in recent months.

At this early date, the listing of primary and caucus dates is understandably tentative, and is subject to revision as a result of changes in state laws or state party rules. The dates herein have been confirmed with state election officials as well as state Republican party headquarters. While every effort has been made to ensure that these dates are correct under current law, we would appreciate receiving any information or statutory or party rule changes which might affect the accuracy of this information.

The delegate selection allocation for the 1996 Republican National Convention is based on the requirements of Rule 31 of the Rules of the Republican Party, the 1990 congressional apportionment, the 1992 and 1994 general elections, and any special elections that have occurred which would affect the totals. One significant result of this preliminary allocation is that because of the 1992 presidential results, many states may have their relative allocations reduced because of the lack of a presidential bonus. This also results in fewer total delegates and alternates to the 1996 Convention compared to the 1992 delegations.

This preliminary allocation is unofficial, and is subject to revision based on election results through 1995, as well as changes for any numerical errors or omissions that might be identified. We strongly encourage each state GOP to review the allocation rules and their state's allocation, and welcome any comments or revisions that might be necessary based on that review.

1996 REPUBLICAN NATIONAL CONVENTION Official Allocation of Delegates (Prepared April 21, 1995 - Subject to Change)

The present delegate allocation system was developed at the 1972 Republican National Convention for use in determining the number of delegates each state would have at the 1976 Convention. In the rules adopted by the 1976 Convention, the formula for delegate allocation for the 1980 Convention remained unchanged except for Puerto Rico (whose delegate allocation was increased from eight to 14 members.) No changes were made in the formula by either the 1980 or 1984 Conventions. The 1988 Convention added a bonus for obtaining a majority of the members of a state legislative chamber, and included representation for American Samoa.

Rule 31 of the Rules of the Republican Party, adopted by the 1992 Republican National Convention in Houston, Texas sets forth the delegate allocation system.

BASE

Each of the 50 states receives a base of six delegates at large. American Samoa receives a base of four delegates; the District of Columbia is allotted 14 delegates at large; Guam is allotted four; Puerto Rico 14; and the Virgin Islands four.

DISTRICT DELEGATES

Each of the 50 states receives three congressional district delegates for each representative it has in the United States House of Representatives, regardless of political affiliation. (Does not apply to American Samoa, the District of Columbia, Guam, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands.)

BONUS DELEGATES

Additional delegates at large (often referred to as bonus delegates) are awarded according to the following criteria:

1992 Presidential Nominee

Any state that cast its electoral votes for President Bush in the 1992 election receives additional delegates at large computed as follows:

4.5 delegates plus a number of delegates equal to 60 percent of the state's electoral vote (the sum of which is rounded up to the next highest whole number.)

1992 - 1995 Senate Races

Each state electing a Republican U.S. Senator between 1992 and 1995, inclusive, receives one additional delegate at large per Senator. However, no state may receive more than two additional delegates for Republican senatorial victories.

1992 - 1995 Gubernatorial Races

Each state electing a Republican governor between 1992 and 1995, inclusive, receives one additional delegate at large. However, no state may receive more than one additional delegate for a gubernatorial victory.

1992 - 1995 House Races

Each state electing Republicans in at least half of its congressional districts between 1992 and 1995, inclusive, receives an additional delegate at large. However, no state may receive more than one additional delegate for electing Republicans in at least half of its congressional districts.

1992 - 1995 State Legislature Races

Each State electing a Republican majority of any chamber of a state legislature, or if the membership in the Republican Party of any chamber of a state legislature increases by twenty-five (25%) or more (so long as 25% equals at least two members) receives one additional delegate at large.

DELEGATION TOTAL

To determine the number of delegates from a state, add the number of base, district and bonus delegates.

The National Vietnam Veterans Coalition was established in 1983 to unify diverse veterans groups in support of common goals. Since its inception, the National Vietnam Veterans Coalition has assisted Vietnam veterans and advocated passage of legislation and administrative procedures vital to their well being.

In 1984 and again 1990, the Coalition directed media attention to remedial legislation concerning Agent Orange, and backed its passage.

Extensive Coalition resources also have been dedicated to helping members and non-members alike in their search for information from the U.S. and other governments about American servicemen reported missing in action or held captive in Vietnam. The Coalition played a critical role in securing passage of legislation to declassify POW/MIA reports.

From its 10-member beginnings, the National Vietnam Veterans Coalition has grown to its present strength of 78-member organizations that represent Vietnam veterans throughout the United States and in Canada.

Originally, the strategy of the Coalition was to concentrate the entire Vietnam Veterans movement on a single issue. Thus, while the Agent Orange bill was pending in Congress in 1984, we directed massive media attention. We are credited for pushing that bill over when it was short of votes in the United States Senate. During the next major legislative push for Agent Orange legislation, in 1990, the Coalition was the only non-chartered veterans organization even permitted to testify before the House of Representatives.

Beginning in August 1984, the Coalition has concentrated on the live prisoner of war issue, seeking to pressure more meaningful action. It has assisted numerous groups and individuals, both within and without the Coalition, who seek to publicize or dramatize the fact that POW's continue to be held. The Coalition has, for example, played an important, often behind-the-scenes role in assisting Robert Garwood, the Smith and McIntire lawsuit, and the Pak Se families. It has carried these concerns as far a field as a face-to-face meeting in the Kremlin with Nikolai Ryzhkov, then premier of the Soviet Union.

Among other accomplishments:

During the 1988 Presidential election, the Coalition successfully encouraged several hundred candidates to run for convention delegates in both parties, the majority of them as uncommitted delegates. Its support and Congressional testimony in support of judicial review before the 100th Congress contributed to the pressure that resulted in the historic compromise legislation creating the new Court of Veterans Appeals.

More recently, the Coalition has played a critical role in securing the passage of legislation to declassify POW/MIA reports before the United States House of Representatives and to establish a Senate Select Committee on the POW/MIA issue.

The Coalition is recognized under Section 501(c)4) of the Internal Revenue Code as a non-profit organization. It has an annually elected board of directors.
