Dear Bob:

Word just came to me from my reelection committee that you were responsible for getting me some last minute funds for my campaign, and I want you to know that with the help of friends like you, it made my winning possible. When you have an opponent spending two million of his own money, and that pot never seemed to run dry, I had to go into high gear with an extra surge for television.

Thank you from the bottom of my heart for your help and I won't forget what you did for me.

With best personal wishes,

Barry Goldwater
