PHASE II PROVIDES CHANCE FOR SHARING RESPONSIBILITY, DOLE SAYS

LAS VEGAS, NEVADA -- Republican National Committee Chairman Bob Dole said today that Phase II of President Nixon's economic policy provides an opportunity to business and labor for sharing the responsibility of a sound prosperity.

Speaking before the Western States Republican Conference, the Kansas Senator said the new Pay Board will help achieve "cooperation and participation from both the business and labor sectors of the economy."

"By the establishment of a tripartite Pay Board, composed of labor, business and public representatives," Dole said, "(the President) has highlighted the necessity -- the vital requirement -- for a broadly-based national effort and full cooperation from all sectors of the economy."

"Organized labor -- and legitimately so -- expected to play an important part in implementing the policy affecting its membership," Dole added. "But a three-sided Board has been established, and labor has its place on that Board and a say in the administration of Phase II policy. And, now, labor -- along with business and the Administration -- has its share of the responsibility, the obligation, of making this policy effective -- on behalf of its members and the entire nation."
