DOLE APPLAUDS OMB DIRECTOR'S DECISION TO ADDRESS KU CONFERENCE

WASHINGTON, D.C. -- At the urging of University of Kansas officials and Sen. Bob Dole, James Miller, federal budget director, will address KU's Economic Outlook Conference on October 10.

"I'm pleased that Jim will play such an important part in what has become a KU tradition. As President Reagan's point man on the budget, Jim will be able to bring the national economic picture into focus and provide some valuable insight on what we might expect in the Midwest for years to come," Dole said.

Miller, director of the Office of Management and Budget (OMB), will serve as the keynote speaker for this year's conference in Lawrence. The conference will concentrate on the recommendations of the Kansas Economic Development study and recent initiatives adopted by the legislature.
