The Congressional Scholarship Awards Program

The Fund for American Studies established the Congressional Scholarship Awards Program to provide financial support for college students who wish to attend the Bryce Harlow Institute on Business and Government Affairs. Based at Georgetown University, the Institute is sponsored by The Fund for American Studies, a tax-exempt educational foundation based in Washington, D.C.

The Awards Dinner provides the primary source of support for the Congressional Scholarship program. The Dinner is held annually in Washington, D.C. to honor a Member of Congress for his or her contributions to our nation and its young people. Proceeds from the dinner are used to fund Bryce Harlow Institute scholarships, as well as two annual scholarship awards—The Barry M. Goldwater Scholarship, established in 1975, and the Congressional Scholarship Award, named for the annual Congressional Honoree. Scholarships are awarded to outstanding undergraduate students based on academic and campus or community achievements.

Held for six weeks each summer, the Institute includes academic courses and internships. Students meet with government officials, business and labor leaders, journalists and foreign diplomats. A domestic policy briefing and The Walter Judd Policy Lecture Series on foreign policy are among the many programs offered to Institute students.

Since 1970, more than 2,000 young men and women have graduated from the Fund's Institutes and nearly 4,000 have participated in Fund sponsored programs. Institute graduates have distinguished themselves in business, law, journalism, education and government. Many alumni currently occupy key positions in the legislative and executive branches of our federal government.

The Fund for American Studies is proud to pay tribute to Senator David L. Boren as the second Congressional Scholarship Award Honoree. A second generation politician (his father is former Oklahoma Congressman Lyle Boren), Boren served as Governor of Oklahoma from 1975 to 1979 and was then elected to the Senate. A graduate of Yale University, Senator Boren is also a Rhodes Scholar. During his two terms in the United States Senate, Senator Boren has embodied the ideals which The Fund seeks to instill in all of its programs' graduates: integrity, honesty, and devotion and commitment to our nation.

Closing Remarks

David R. Jones
President, The Fund for American Studies

David Johnson served as Executive Director of the Democratic Senatorial Campaign Committee during the 1985-86 election cycle. In this assignment, Mr. Johnson managed a $13 million budget, a staff of 35 and was instrumental in the successful campaign to return Democratic control to the U.S. Senate. Formerly legislative counsel to the Pharmaceutical Manufacturers Association, Mr. Johnson has also served as Administrative Assistant to Senator George Mitchell, Deputy Assistant Secretary of the Department of Health and Human Services and Associate Deputy Advisor to President Carter for inflation. Mr. Johnson began his career in Washington as counsel to the Intergovernmental Relations Subcommittee where he served as energy legislation advisor to Senator Edmund Muskie. He is now a Partner of Griffin/Johnson and Associates.

Senator David Pryor caught "Potomac fever" as a teenager when he served as a page for Congressman Oren Harris. A graduate of Arkansas State University, Senator Pryor received his law degree from the University of Arkansas School of Law. Beginning in 1966 when he was elected to fill the unexpired term of Congressman Harris, Senator Pryor has served as a Congressman, Governor, and United States Senator. Now in his twelfth year in the United States Senate, David Pryor is Secretary of the Democratic Conference, a member of the Agriculture and Finance Committees and third in the Senate Democratic Leadership.

Yvonne Gilmore is presently the Associate Director of Regulatory Affairs and Federal Regulatory Counsel for the National Association of Federal Credit Unions. Prior to joining the staff of NAFCU, Ms. Gilmore was a private practice attorney and a staff attorney for the National Credit Union Administration. While at NCUA, Ms. Gilmore served on the U.S. Attorney General's Interagency Task Force on Bank Fraud Enforcement. A graduate of the University of California, Ms. Gilmore received her law degree from Georgetown University. She is a 1979 graduate of the Institute on Comparative Political and Economic Systems.

John Randall (Randy) McDaniel is a native Oklahoman and a recent graduate of the University of Oklahoma where he achieved a 3.94 out of a possible 4.0. During college, Randy was a member of the Army ROTC, Beta Theta Phi, Oklahoma College Republicans, The Oklahoma Memorial Union Board of Directors and Executive Committee, and The President's Leadership Class. A few of his achievements include: Top Ten Freshman and Sophomore, President's Honor Roll, Dean's List, and the Thomas Boston Gordon Award. Randy is enrolled in this summer's Bryce Harlow Institute on Business and Government Affairs.

Senator Bob Dole, one of America's most respected and best known leaders, has a distinguished record of public service that spans almost four decades. As a platoon leader in the legendary Tenth Mountain Division in Italy, Senator Dole was gravely wounded on the battlefield and was later decorated for heroic achievement. First elected to the Senate in 1968, after serving four consecutive terms in the House of Representatives, Dole served as Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee and has been called "the voice of agriculture" on Capitol Hill. Respected by his fellow legislators (as well as Kansans) for his exceptional ability to build bridges among diverse elements, Senator Dole was unanimously re-elected by his Republican colleagues to a third term as their Senate Leader in 1988.

David Boren is an honors graduate from Yale University, a Rhodes Scholar and the outstanding graduate from his Oklahoma College of Law class. Upon graduation, he represented Seminole County in the Oklahoma House of Representatives for four consecutive terms. A second generation politician, Boren served as Governor of Oklahoma from 1975 to 1979 and was then elected to the Senate in 1980. In 1984, Senator Boren was re-elected by the largest majority of any major statewide candidate in the state's history. He now serves on the Committees on Agriculture, Finance, and Small Business and is Chairman of the Select Committee on Intelligence and the Subcommittee on Energy and Taxation. A critic of campaign finances, Senator Boren has served as principal author of the Boren-Goldwater and Boren-Byrd Bills for campaign finance reform to curb the spiralling cost of congressional campaigns.

Don V. Cogman is a native of Oklahoma. He is the former Chief of Staff to the late U.S. Senator Dewey F. Bartlett and for nine years served as Vice President of Government Affairs for MAPCO, Inc., a two billion dollar energy company. Currently, Mr. Cogman serves as President of the RCF Group. He is on the Board of Directors of numerous organizations, and is a past Presidential appointee to the President's Advisory Board on Private Sector Initiatives. Mr. Cogman is a member of The Fund for American Studies Board of Trustees and one of the founders of The Bryce Harlow Institute on Business and Government Affairs.

David R. Jones serves as the President of the Board of Trustees of The Fund for American Studies as well as President of The NFIB Foundation. Mr. Jones was instrumental in the founding of The Fund for American Studies over twenty years ago. A native of West Virginia, Mr. Jones served as Administrative Assistant to former Senator William Buckley, Vice Chancellor for Development at Vanderbilt University and Vice President for Development at The National Trust for Historic Preservation.

About The Fund

The Fund for American Studies was originally established in 1969 as The Charles Edison Youth Fund by friends and colleagues of Charles Edison, son of inventor Thomas Alva Edison. It was Governor Edison's desire and commitment to build confidence among America's young people in the strength and value of our constitutional form of government and market based economic system. With the help of William F. Buckley, Jr., Dr. Walter Judd, Marvin Liebman, and David R. Jones, The Fund was created for the purpose of educating young American leaders in the concepts, principles, and institutions which have made the United States the strongest and most prosperous nation in the world.

In particular, The Fund's founders determined to help restore the eroding confidence in basic American values and institutions. Fortunately, the last twenty years have shown a marked transformation in the perceptions young American's hold of their nation. We like to think The Fund is in some small way responsible for that change.

The task, however, is far from complete. As Russell Kirk wrote, "The American cause is the defense of the principles of a true civilization. This defense is conducted by renewing men's consciousness of true moral and political and economic principles, and by applying true principles to the institutions of society and private life." Our challenge is to conserve and transmit those principles to ever-increasing numbers of young Americans.

The Bryce Harlow Institute on Business and Government Affairs, The Institute on Comparative Political and Economic Systems, the Institute on Political Journalism, and Fund sponsored lectures, scholarships, and fellowships are designed to prepare young leaders to make informed decisions that will contribute to the continued strength and progress of the country.

Basic to our programs is a commitment to expose students to real-world experiences and the views of those who have achieved success in the public and private sectors. This first-hand experience brings meaning to the academic coursework and provides students with a stronger foundation from which to pursue their chosen careers. This approach has met with resounding approval from students, faculty, and program participants, and has earned The Fund academic recognition by colleges and universities across the country. The Fund has received four awards from the Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge for "outstanding achievement in bringing about a better understanding of the American way of life."

With the help of concerned individuals, business and industry, private philanthropic organizations, and academic institutions, The Fund has provided a unique educational resource for outstanding young Americans for more than two decades. Established as a non-profit organization in the District of Columbia, The Fund for American Studies is financially dependent on voluntary subscription to Charles Edison's ideals, and invites the support of all those who share his beliefs.

CONGRESSIONAL SCHOLARSHIP AWARDS PROGRAM

CONGRESSIONAL SCHOLARSHIP AWARDS PROGRAM

The Fund for American Studies established the Congressional Scholarship Awards Program to provide financial support for college students who wish to attend the Institute on Comparative Political and Economic Systems, the Institute on Political Journalism, and the Institute on Business and Government Affairs. Based at Georgetown University, these Institutes are sponsored by The Fund for American Studies, a tax-exempt educational foundation based in Washington, D.C.

The Congressional Scholarship Awards Dinner provides the primary source of support for this program. The Dinner is held annually in Washington, D.C. to honor a Member of Congress for his or her contributions to our nation and its young people. A portion of the dinner proceeds are used to provide two annual scholarship awards—the Barry M. Goldwater Scholarship Award, which The Fund established in 1975, and the Congressional Scholarship Award, named for the annual Congressional honoree. A major portion of each dinner sponsor's gift may be designated to establish a scholarship either in the name of the donor or a Member of Congress.

Congressional Scholarships are awarded to outstanding undergraduate students based on academic and campus or community achievements for participation in The Fund's Institutes. Held for six weeks during the summer, the Institutes include academic courses and internships. Students meet with government officials, business and labor leaders, journalists, and foreign diplomats. A domestic policy briefing at The White House and the Walter Judd Policy Lecture Series on foreign policy are among many program events which provide students opportunities for discussion with public and private sector leaders.

Many alumni currently occupy key positions in the legislative and executive branches of our federal government.

Senator Richard Lugar, the 1989 Congressional Scholarship Awards Honoree, says, "The Fund for American Studies is the type of initiative that was long overdue; it is a constructive effort to immerse potential leaders in the work and thought of Washington. And it is this invigorating hybrid of practical experience with intellectual endeavor that inspires our youth to become leaders for tomorrow—leaders needed to preserve and advance our heritage of freedom."

The Institute on Comparative Political and Economic Systems, the Institute on Political Journalism, the Campus Economics Conferences, the American Political Journalism Conferences, and Fund-sponsored lectures, scholarships, and fellowships are designed to prepare young leaders to make informed decisions that will contribute to the continued strength and progress of the country.

Basic to our programs is a commitment to expose students to real-world experiences and the views of those who have achieved success in the public and private sectors. This first-hand experience brings meaning to the academic coursework and provides students with a stronger foundation from which to pursue their careers. This approach has met with resounding approval from students, faculty, and program participants, and has earned The Fund academic recognition by colleges and universities across the country. THE INSTITUTE ON COMPARATIVE POLITICAL AND ECONOMIC SYSTEMS

The Institute on Comparative Political and Economic Systems teaches college student leaders about the structure, function, and achievements of our American political and economic systems through comparison with systems in other parts of the world and through first-hand experience in our national government. The Institute was developed in cooperation with Georgetown University in Washington, D.C. as The Fund's first program in 1969.

An intensive six-week summer program, the Institute combines four distinct elements: academic coursework, internships, guest lectures, and site briefings. Institute courses in Comparative Political Systems and Comparative Economic Systems examine the policies and influences which govern a variety of political and economic structures. By understanding the weaknesses and strengths of other systems, students are better able to understand and appreciate U.S. policies and practices. Students earn six academic credits for Institute coursework.

Every afternoon students intern in the offices of our national leaders in the legislative, judicial, or executive branch of government, with national organizations, embassies, or other offices uniquely involved in the daily operations of government. Each internship provides the student with an opportunity for independent research as well as active participation in the political process. Where possible, students are assigned to offices that relate to their career objectives, and all gain practical experience with the inner workings of government.

The Walter Judd Policy Lecture Series invites dignitaries from foreign embassies, Congress, government agencies, and the diplomatic corps to the Georgetown University campus for discussion of American foreign policy issues. Speakers address timely issues from widely diverse perspectives and participate in vigorous question and answer sessions with the students. The opportunity to meet and discuss issues with policy-makers, domestic and foreign, is an experience unmatched by traditional educational programs.

On-site briefings take students to national institutions for discussion of current policy issues and events. Briefings are held at locations including The White House, the U.S. Department of State, the Federal Reserve, the Pentagon, and the U.S. Supreme Court.

The Institute admits approximately 100 students for each six-week summer program. Admission is open to students who have successfully completed at least one year of college or university study, including coursework in economics and government. All students must meet the admissions standards of Georgetown University, and all candidates are reviewed by the Institute's Board of Visitors. Selection is based on academic excellence, leadership ability, and the recommendations of the home university faculty.

THE INSTITUTE ON POLITICAL JOURNALISM

The Institute on Political Journalism at Georgetown University encourages responsible and ethical political journalism. Recognizing that modern communications technologies and methods enhance journalistic power to make news as well as to report it, and to shape public opinion as well as to feed it, the Institute strives to impress upon students the public responsibility aspects of career journalism. Our intent is to demonstrate that the freedoms guaranteed by the First Amendment are dependent upon keen ethical standards and even-handed treatment of the news.

The Institute on Political Journalism takes an interdisciplinary approach by combining the study of journalism, ethics, economics, and political science. The six-week curriculum includes three major components: coursework, internships, and evening lectures.

Institute courses in Ethics and the Media and Economics in Public Policy are designed to provide students a basic understanding of economic and ethical principles in order that they report from an informed and objective perspective. Courses include current-issues applications and a strong emphasis on professional standards and ethics. Students earn six academic credits from Georgetown University for Institute coursework.

Internships in news bureaus, the press offices of Members of Congress and the executive branch, and other media-related organizations provide students the opportunity for hands-on experience in their chosen field. Internship assignments are tailored to the specific interests of the student. Participants may earn additional college credit for the internship through their home universities.

Evening dialogues bring to the Georgetown campus professionals representing all fields of the media. These sessions provide an opportunity for students to explore contemporary issues concerning the news media in our society. Designed to maximize the exchange between speakers and students, panelists' remarks are followed by an intensive question and answer session.

Since its establishment in 1985, the Institute has graduated more than 200 students from colleges and universities nationwide. Admitted students must have completed at least one year of undergraduate study and exhibit a high level of interest and involvement in the field. All students must meet the admissions requirements of Georgetown University and are reviewed by the Institute's Board of Visitors. Selection is based on academic excellence, extracurricular experience, and the recommendations of the home university faculty.

THE INSTITUTE ON BUSINESS AND GOVERNMENT AFFAIRS

The Fund is currently planning a third Institute—the Institute on Business and Government Affairs—to premiere in the summer of 1990. In view of the growing involvement of business in the governmental process and the lack of academic courses on many college campuses in legislative and public affairs, the establishment of the new Institute is sorely needed. The program will expose students to the role of business in the political and governmental process and encourage them to pursue the proper career path in establishing themselves in this increasingly important profession.

The Washington, D.C. based Institute will include a six-hour course of study, internships, and guest lectures. Classes will include lectures, discussion sessions, and case studies, and will combine practical public affairs study with a course in ethics and power. Students will intern with corporations and associations as well as consulting and law firms uniquely involved in government affairs. Additionally, guest lectures will be regularly featured to provide students the opportunity to meet and question government and public professionals.

Power and Values in Organizations
 Professor Michael J. Collins,
 Professor Anthony T. Moore
 Professor George L. Peabody
 (IDST 310-10) 3 academic credits from Georgetown University

The course will involve students personally and actively in a process of analysis and reflection that will help them understand more fully not simply the nature and working of organizations, but their own values and responsibilities as organizational members. It will consider the shaping impact of personality type preferences and society's shared beliefs about both individual and organizational values, examine some theories relating the interplay of power and values in organizations, and analyze these issues as they are concretely articulated in several classic plays of the modern theatre. The course will conclude with a weekend workshop designed, through games, simulations and power exercises, to help students make more personally meaningful some of the issues of the course and discover the sources of their own empowerment.

FACULTY

Ernest J. Englander, Institute director, is an associate professor of Business and Public Policy at The George Washington University in Washington, D.C. He received his B.A., M.S., M.B.A., and Ph.D. degrees at the University of Washington in Seattle. He has published articles in the fields of economics, business and labor history, corporate political behavior, and business-government relations.

Michael J. Collins, professor of "Power and Values in Organizations," is dean of the School for Summer and Continuing Education and a member of the department of English at Georgetown University. He is a fellow of the Society for Values in Higher Education, was director of the Values Program at Fordham University, and has written frequently about the relation of values, literature, and teaching in colleges and universities. He conducts courses on Shakespeare and Modern is a member of the faculty of Vanderbilt University. One of Dr. Peabody's major interests has been in training people to use more effectively the power they have been given and are expected to use.

"The Bryce Harlow Institute on Business and Government Affairs offers college students a first-hand look at the Washington lobbying arena. NFIB is proud to be an intern sponsor during the Institute's inaugural year."
John Motley, III
 Director,
 Federal Government Affairs
 National Federation of Independent Business

SPECIAL EVENTS

In addition to the Institute's regular weekly schedule, a number of special events are held during the program including: "Career Day," featuring individuals working in both the public and private sectors who lead in-depth discussions concerning career options and opportunities; and "Site Visits" to the Washington offices of major corporations to personally meet with top executives.

ALUMNI

For over 20 years, The Fund for American Studies has sponsored the award winning Institute on Comparative Political and Economic Systems, and the Institute on Political Journalism. Graduates of these programs have found that the coursework at Georgetown, the practical knowledge gained through hands-on internships, and the professional contacts established through the Institute, have made significant differences in their career pursuits.

Former participants have attained distinguished positions in government, business, education, politics and the media.

Fund graduates include: Frank Donatelli, partner, Bond-Donatelli and former assistant to President Reagan; Ron Docksai, director, Government Affairs, Dow Pharmaceuticals; Loren Thompson, deputy college or university. Students must demonstrate a strong interest in business and government.

Procedures

Enrollment in the Institute is limited to approximately 40 students. Early application is encouraged. Applicants must submit the application form (attached) along with the application fee, three letters of recommendation (at least one from a business person, preferably a corporate or association executive), transcript, resume, and photograph to The Fund for American Studies, Bryce Harlow Institute on Business and Government Affairs, 1000 16th Street, N.W., Suite 401, Washington, D.C. 20036; (202) 293-5092.

The Institute should receive admissions materials for students seeking early acceptance no later than February 9, 1990. All other applicants should file admissions materials by March 9, 1990. Business and Government Relations
Professor Ernest J. Englander

Georgetown University

The business community is confronted with a growing number of issues which involve formal and informal interaction with various levels of government ranging from legislation, to administrative rulings, to economic, tax, and trade policy-making. These issues have significant impact on business conduct in the U.S. and internationally.

This course examines the history and philosophy of the business-government relationship and focuses on the changes which have occurred over the past quarter century. Since the 1960s, the U.S. has seen a significant expansion of federal regulation in areas such as consumer and environmental protection, worker health and safety, and employment practices, as well as the deregulation of the transportation, telecommunications, and financial industries. In turn, there has been a corresponding increase in the political activities of business, and the development of a Washington, D.C. business-government affairs community. Through lectures, readings, and case studies, this course looks at current public policy issues facing business and the business community's political response.

Higher Education, was director of the Values Program at Fordham University and has written frequently about the relation of values, literature, and teaching in colleges and universities. He conducts courses on Shakespeare and Modern British Theatre for undergraduates and for graduate students in Georgetown's Liberal Studies Program. He has a Ph.D. in English and American Literature from New York University.

Anthony T. Moore, professor of "Power and Values in Organizations," is an associate dean of the School for Summer and Continuing Education at Georgetown University. He teaches courses on adult development and consults with Fortune 500 companies and smaller organizations on human relations and values. He is a certified administrator of the Myers-Briggs Type Indicator which he uses as an instrument in his teaching and consulting. He has a Ph.D. in philosophy and teaches on both the graduate and undergraduate levels.

George L. Peabody, professor of "Power and Values in Organizations," has 25 years experience training managers, consulting in organization development, and university lecturing. He is president of Associates for Creative Leadership, Inc., based in Washington, D.C., which conducts management development programs in this country and abroad, and education, politics and the media. End graduates include: Frank Donatelli, director, Government Affairs, Dow Pharmaceuticals; Loren Thompson, deputy director, Presidential Personnel; Yvonne Gilmore, director, Regulatory Affairs, National Association of Federal Credit Unions; and Joyce Papes, loan officer, The Export/Import Bank.

Undoubtedly, the graduates of The Bryce Harlow Institute on Business and Government Affairs will follow these alumni into important leadership roles.

Does your course work prepare you for the real world of business? Does your resume reflect the focus and level of experience that will allow you to secure your first professional position? Work experience, combined with a good education, is what makes the crucial difference in today's challenging work place. The Washington, D.C. based Bryce Harlow Institute on Business and Government Affairs provides you with six weeks of exciting, practical work experience, academic study with distinguished faculty, and the opportunity to learn first-hand from leaders in government, business, law and politics.

Sponsored by The Fund for American Studies, the Bryce Harlow Institute on Business and Government Affairs is an intensive and highly challenging six-week summer program for undergraduate students. Institute participants:

- Receive six hours of academic credit in "Business and Government Relations" and "Power and Values in Organizations."
- Intern daily in the offices of corporations, national associations, consulting firms and select law firms.
- Participate in a guest lecture series which will bring top corporate executives and government officials to the Georgetown University campus for discussions of business-government relations.

- Attend special events including "Career Day" and "Site Visits."

The Institute is devoted to examining the role of business in the government policy-making process. It is named in memory of Bryce Harlow, the dean of Washington corporate representatives, who brought professional discipline and ethical standards to an emerging field. Bryce Harlow had a distinguished career in both the private and public sectors. He served as a top advisor to President Eisenhower and President Nixon, and opened the first Washington office of Procter & Gamble where he was vice president-National Government Relations for 17 years. He received the nation's highest civilian award, the Medal of Freedom, from President Reagan in 1981. Carrying on in his tradition, the Institute will expose students to concepts of power and ethics as they relate to private/public sector interchange.

Based on the beautiful, historic Georgetown University campus in the nation's capital, The Bryce Harlow Institute offers students virtually unlimited resources and opportunities—cultural, political and intellectual. Washington is a center of decision-making that affects not only the nation's business but that of the international community. Interns will work alongside government affairs professionals who must resolve issues that face business and government.

The Institute's Washington internship program and guest lecture series put you in touch with leaders whose decisions determine the course of our world. Internship sponsors and guest speakers are committed to making your participation in the Institute a challenging and productive experience. They believe, as does The Fund for American Studies, that it is the responsibility of today's leaders to help shape and prepare the leaders of tomorrow.

The 1990 Bryce Harlow Institute on Business and Government Affairs will admit approximately 40 students from campuses across the country. Representing a wide variety of regional, cultural, political, religious, and socio-economic backgrounds, these students lend a very important dimension to the program. If chosen, you may find yourself re-evaluating personal views while sharing ideas and experiences with your classmates. Don't miss out—apply today.

Paul Hearne indicates that the event has raised about $1.3 million, which includes the $70,000 from Bill Keck and the $100,000 from Albert Reichman. They now have $500,000 in the endowment, and envision making grants this fall of approximately $600,000 without touching any of the endowment funds.

The program is scheduled to begin at 6:45 and conclude somewhere between 7:20 and 7:30 (including a 5-minute performance by the National Theatre of the Deaf).

Bob Costas, NBC Sports Announcer, is the Emcee.

They are expecting you to arrive at 6:40, and depart about 7:30. I believe you can shorten the length of your stay if we can get them to move the presentation of the Mercedes keys up in the program, following which you can leave at any time.

Their proposed program is attached.

FUND FOR AMERICAN STUDIES
CONGRESSIONAL SCHOLARSHIP
AWARDS DINNER
JUNE 13, 1990

THANK YOU DAVID (PRYOR).
IT'S A PLEASURE TO BE HERE
TONIGHT TO HONOR OUR GOOD FRIEND DAVID BOREN.
AND IT'S CERTAINLY FITTING
THAT DAVID IS BEING HONORED
BY THE CONGRESSIONAL SCHOLARSHIPS AWARD PROGRAM, BECAUSE OF HIS OUTSTANDING COMMITMENT TO

EDUCATION AND AMERICA'S YOUTH.

NO ONE HERE HAS ANY DOUBT ABOUT THE IMPORTANCE OF EDUCATION TO OUR NATION'S YOUTH AND OUR NATION'S FUTURE. BUT THERE'S A BIG DIFFERENCE BETWEEN
RECOGNIZING ITS IMPORTANCE AND DOING SOMETHING ABOUT

IT. THAT'S WHERE DAVID BOREN COMES IN.

DAVID'S COMMITMENT TO EDUCATIONAL EXCELLENCE IS NO PASSING FAD — FROM HIS DAYS IN THE OKLAHOMA
STATE LEGISLATURE, TO HIS TERM AS GOVERNOR OF THE
STATE, AND TO HIS NEARLY 12
YEARS IN THE SENATE, DAVID

BOREN HAS BEEN A CHAMPION
FOR IMPROVING THE EDUCATION OF YOUNG AMERICANS.

IN FACT, HIS FIRST MAJOR LEGISLATIVE INITIATIVE IN EDUCATION, THE SCHOLAR LEADERSHIP PROGRAM, BROUGHT TOP SCHOLARS FROM AROUND
THE WORLD TO LEAD SEMINARS WITH OKLAHOMA COLLEGE

STUDENTS. THAT ALONE
DEMONSTRATED DAVID'S
EXTRAORDINARY COMMITMENT TO EDUCATION — HE PLUGGED
AWAY FOR EIGHT YEARS IN A
PERSONAL CRUSADE TO WIN
PASSAGE OF THE LEGISLATION,
AND HAD THE PLEASURE OF SIGNING IT INTO LAW AS GOVERNOR.

IN THE SENATE, DAVID'S COMMITMENT TO RECOGNIZING EXCELLENCE IN EDUCATION HAS GROWN. IN 1985, FOR EXAMPLE, HE ESTABLISHED THE OKLAHOMA FOUNDATION FOR EXCELLENCE, WHICH AWARDS
PRIZES TO OUTSTANDING PUBLIC SCHOOL TEACHERS, RECOGNIZES HIGH SCHOOL SENIORS AS

ACADEMIC ALL—STATERS, AND HELPS PRIVATE FOUNDATIONS
AID LOCAL PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

BUT DAVID BOREN'S
ACCOMPLISHMENTS DON'T END
IN THE EDUCATION FIELD. HE HOLDS THE CHALLENGING
POSITION OF CHAIRMAN OF THE
SENATE INTELLIGENCE
COMMITTEE. AND IT JUST SO

HAPPENS I SERVE WITH HIM ON THE SENATE AGRICULTURE AND FINANCE COMMITTEES, WHERE HE HAS DISTINGUISHED HIMSELF AS AN EXPERT IN SO MANY AREAS.

HE AND I MAY NOT AGREE
ON EVERY ISSUE, BUT ONE THING WE CAN AGREE ON —

DAVID BOREN HAS EARNED
OUR RECOGNITION HERE

TONIGHT.

BUT BEFORE I FINISH, LET ME
JUST SAY A WORD ABOUT THE
FUND FOR AMERICAN STUDIES.
THROUGH ITS THREE INSTITUTES,
THIS VALUABLE PRIVATE—SECTOR
INITIATIVE HAS BENEFITED OVER
2,000 COLLEGE
UNDERGRADUATES, AND THIS DINNER HAS MADE THE

PARTICIPATION OF MANY OF
THOSE STUDENTS POSSIBLE.
AND I'VE ALWAYS BELIEVED THAT IT'S PROGRAMS LIKE THE
FUND FOR AMERICAN STUDIES
THAT ARE THE MOST VALUABLE
IN EXPOSING FUTURE LEADERS TO THE VALUES, PRINCIPLES AND INSTITUTIONS THAT HAVE MADE
THIS COUNTRY GREAT. WE ALL

BENEFIT FROM YOUNG
AMERICANS INSPIRED TO LEAD
BY FIRST—HAND EXPERIENCE
COMBINED WITH TOP—NOTCH
ACADEMIC TRAINING.

SO CONGRATULATIONS TO THE FUND FOR AMERICAN STUDIES AND ITS NEWEST
INSTITUTE, THE BRYCE HARLOW
INSTITUTE ON BUSINESS AND

GOVERNMENT AFFAIRS. AND MOST OF ALL,
CONGRATULATIONS TO OUR FRIEND DAVID BOREN.
THANK YOU.
