Dear Bob:

I wish to invite you to address leaders of the Indian American community at an Indian American Issues Conference I am hosting in Washington, D.C. on Friday, August 7, 1992. The purpose of this conference is to bring leaders of the Indian American community and members of the United States Senate together in an exchange of ideas.

As you know, Indian Americans have made tremendous economic and social contributions to this country. As a group, they are also one of the most organized and effective growing political coalitions today.

Dr. Zachariah "Zac" Zachariah, who as you know has provided tremendous support for President Bush, and Krishna Srinivasa, both highly respected leaders in the Indian American community have expressed the desirability and benefit of having you address the group on issues relating to Immigration and Indo-United States relations.

The forum also will be beneficial to you personally, affording you the opportunity to exchange information with people who are strategically important to America's economic and political strength.

Our meeting will take place at the National Republican Senatorial Committee, 425 Second Street, N.E., Washington, D.C. The forum will be informal and consist of about 50-60 people.

The agenda is in process and will be provided to your staff shortly. In the interim, please have your staff contact Jay Velasquez at (202) 675-6007 or Liz Harris at (202)675-6165 to confirm availability. They will be able to answer any questions you may have.
