RE: Washington Center for Internships and Academic Seminars Luncheon Thursday, July 21

La Coline

*At the request of Tom Tauke, you are attending a luncheon kicking-off the "third decade" campaign of the Washington Center for Internships and Academic Seminars.

*The Washington Center was founded in 1975. It is a non-profit organization that places college students in internships throughout Washington. During its 19 year history, over 20,000 students from over 750 colleges and universities have participated in the Center's programs.

*The purpose of this lunch is to elicit financial support from members of the business community. The goal of the fundraising campaign is $5 million. They have currently raised $1,700,000.

*This is an informal event for about 35-40 business types, and Mr. Tauke is looking for you to give a few brief words of support. Some ideas are attached.

*One of the drawbacks of serving in political office is that whenever you get up to speak, no matter what you're saying, someone always thinks that "He's just another politician after my money."

*Unfortunately for you, that's exactly what I'm here today.

 $*\mbox{I'm}$ here to ask for your support of the "third decade" campaign for the Washington Center.

*It could be worse, however. If my wife were here, she'd be asking for your money and your blood.

*The Washington Center is a very worthy project. For two decades, it has allowed some of America's best and brightest young people to learn about government first-hand. And the remarkable thing is that even after they see government up close, many want to return after graduation and make a career in public service. Your generous support will continue to pay dividends for America's future.

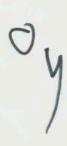

*In closing, let me just share with you the story about the chairman of the local town charity drive. After looking at the records, he was appalled an obvious oversight. A town leader with a six-figure income had never given a penny. He called on the man and told him what the records showed.

And the man said, "Do your records show that my 93 year old mother is in an expensive nursing home, requiring special care? Do your records show that my sister was recently widowed with five children, and there was no insurance? Do your records show my disabled brother, who is unable to support himself?

The embarrassed Chairman said "I'm sorry, our records don't show that."

"Well," the town leader said. "If I don't give anything to them, why do you think I would give anything to you?"

*Thankfully, I know there is no body like that in this room. Thank you.

Success begins with experience..

The mission of the Third Decade Campaign is to build upon our 20 year legacy of providing internship programs, as the leading institution of experiential education, in the nation. The goals of the Third Decade Campaign are to provide The Washington Center permanency in the nation's capital through the purchase of a residential and educational facility, and to provide the means to respond to the ever-increasing number of college students from across the country who wish to intern in the nation's Capital.

THE WASHINGTON CENTER'S

THIRD DECADE CAMPAIGN: Developing Tomorrow's Leaders

I. EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

The Washington Center is an independent, nonprofit, educational organization founded in 1975. Its mission is to utilize the resources of the nation's capital to provide participatory learning experience in order to enhance students' academic, civic, and professional development. In this way, The Washington Center seeks to promote future leadership for the public, private, and non-profit sectors of our society.

Nothing is more critical and relevant to solving the nation's challenging issues than the development of leadership. By providing an opportunity for students to develop leadership skills, The Washington Center will be able to help this country address the increasing complex leadership responsibilities that it will face in the future.

In order to continue its service to government, business and education through its outstanding experiential educational programs, it is imperative that The Washington Center improve and expand upon its existing programs, services and facilities. The Washington Center, whose legacy includes over 20,000 college students from over 750 colleges and universities since 1975, can achieve this goal through the Third Decade Campaign's efforts to raise $5 million.

The Third Decade Campaign's mission is to enhance the prominence of The Washington Center with continued support by many individual, foundation and corporate leaders. Also, the success of the Third Decade Campaign will enable The Washington Center to expand its outstanding educational services, and provide the funding to purchase a residential/educational facility.

Under the leadership of the Third Decade Campaign's Co-chairman, William C. Ferguson, Chairman, NYNEX, (additional Co-chair to be named), and our Board of Directors, The Washington Center is well poised to meet the new and exciting challenges that lie ahead in becoming a true "Center of excellence."

II. THE WASHINGTON CENTER: A BRIEF HISTORY

The Washington Center for Internships and Academic Seminars has long been an advocate and prime mover in leadership development programs. During its 19-year history, over 20,000 students from over 750 colleges and universities have participated in the Center's programs.

The Washington Center's concentration is on the young people of America and how to get its best and brightest, its potential leaders, and its outstanding minority representatives exposed to public policy and its significance to business, education, government, and the nation at large.

Founded by William Burke in 1975, the Center utilizes the resources of the nations capital to provide participatory, high-quality learning experiences in order to enhance students' academic, civic, and professional development. In this way, The Washington Center seeks to promote future leadership for the public, private and non-profit sectors of our society. This mission and the Center's goals have remained constant since its founding.

In addition to the over 20,000 young graduates, many of whom are beginning to have a major impact in their own communities and state capitals or in their professions as well as Washington, these alumni and other statistics speak for themselves and about The Washington Center. For example,

- over 750 colleges and universities have sent their students through the programs;
 over 1,000 different organizations in Washington have accepted students for internship placements;
- * 200 corporate, foundation and individual donors have supported annual and special projects; for the current academic year; and,
- * there are 600 800 interns yearly, each participating in one of three trisemesters, and an additional 400 - 500 students that participate in various academic seminars throughout the year.

III. THIRD DECADE CAMPAIGN: THE FUTURE OF THE WASHINGTON CENTER

The Third Decade Campaign's mission is to enhance the prominence of The Washington Center with continued support by many individual, foundation and corporate leaders. Also, the success of the Third Decade Campaign will enable The Washington Center to expand its outstanding educational services, and provide the funding to purchase a residential/educational facility.

The goal of the Third Decade Campaign is to generate financial support of $5 million as a means of enhancing The Washington Center's on-going programs; developing new programs; and helping in the purchase of a new Washington Center housing/education facility. The Washington Center's success as of June 28, 1994 includes $1,705,000 towards the $5 million goal. This Campaign will be over and above the existing operating campaign, and will be used for:

1. Reserve Funds for Financial Security: $1,000,000

The Washington Center's internships, academic seminars, and special programs provide opportunities for students from all over the country to have semester-long internships in both the public and private sectors such as: The White House, Congress, the executive agencies and various non-profit organizations. These placements encompass a wide variety of choices for fields of study and learning experiences. The students in these programs are provided with an opportunity to exchange ideas about national and world concerns with government leaders, business executives, editors and others who meet demanding challenges every day. Reserve funds are needed for financial security to maintain, expand and enrich the content of these learning experiences.

2. Endowment: $1,100,000

To ensure that The Washington Center reaches its objectives in the coming years, endowment funds of $1,100,000 for scholarship funds must be readily available for its traditional programs, the programs designed to encourage increased participation of minorities, and its new program endeavors.

. 3. Equity funds: $2,500,000

The Washington Center seeks equity funds for the construction or purchase of a building for a new housing and academic facility. The Center's responsibility to meet the academic and housing needs of its students has increased rather than diminished. The Washington Center serves the needs of interns and other students spending a few weeks or a semester in the nation's capital. A site near the United States Capitol and other government and private agencies and organizations and near public transportation is the most appropriate location. The Washington Center already has $1,235,000 in pledges to be applied towards the equity needed to purchase such a facility.

4. Campaign costs: $400,000. The Center already has $420,000 towards the campaign costs.

The Washington Center for Internships and Academic Seminars is an independent, non-profit, educational organization founded in 1975. Its mission is to utilize the resources of the nation's capital to provide participatory learning experiences in order to enhance students' academic, civic, and professional development. In this way, The Washington Center seeks to promote future leadership for the public, private and non-profit sectors of our society.

INTRODUCTION

Since 1975, The Washington Center has developed into the largest, independent, non-profit educational organization that enables students to earn college credit for internships and academic seminars in the nation's capital. While in Washington, students are placed in full-time, entry level professional positions for 15 weeks in the fall and spring and 10 weeks during the summer or spring and winter quarters. Most students earn 12-17 credits from their own college or university for their experience. Interns are at the workplace four and one-half days a week and participate in a variety of lecture series and group activities. Students are placed with government agencies, trade associations, arts and humanities organizations, health and human services agencies, foreign embassies, law firms, small businesses and major corporations, and energy and environmental organizations. In addition, students are required to take a three-credit academic course one evening a week. There are a wide range of courses offered including issues in the arts and humanities, communications, public policy, business, and law. Nearly 20,000 students from 750 colleges and universities have taken advantage of this once-in-a-lifetime opportunity.

PROGRAM OFFERINGS

MINORITY INITIATIVES

The Washington Center, recognizing the need to increase minority representation in leadership positions in government, business and the non-profit sector, developed the Minority Leaders Fellowship Program, which will prepare outstanding minority students to assume their future roles as leaders of our country. Through the Minorities in Congress scholarship program, students interested in government and public service as a profession can gain first-hand experience in this field by interning in congressional offices on Capitol Hill. These internships will provide a comprehensive training and educational experience that will serve as a stepping stone for a career in government.

INDEPENDENT SECTOR AND ENVIRONMENTAL INTERNSHIP PROGRAMS

In the Independent Sector Program, students are placed as interns with senior level managers and executives in foundations and non-profit organizations in D.C., where they are exposed to social issues such as literacy, poverty, homelessness, the handicapped, AIDS and the elderly. The program offers a comprehensive approach to the study of philanthropy, and not only cultivates the leadership skills of the participant, but deepens their interest and commitment to civic affairs. The Environmental Internship Program, run in conjunction with environmental agencies and organizations, offers students the opportunity to work in one of a number of different environmental areas depending on the student's interests and academic background. All of these programs empower students to enrich the communities they return to serve.

COLLEGE PLUS ONE PROGRAM

The mission of the College Plus One Program is to provide internship opportunities and career development training for recent college graduates. Participants will have a twelve-week interim professional work experience prior to formal pursuit of graduate/professional education or a chosen career path. This is an excellent chance for them to explore career opportunities, obtain some practical experience in a chosen field, prepare for advanced graduate or professional study or simply do something different and exciting before going on to another endeavor.

ACADEMIC SEMINARS

Academic Seminars are programs (ranging from one to three weeks) that combine lectures, workshops, panel discussions, site visits, briefings, informational interviews and, in some cases, a career development track. Seminars are scheduled during typical "break" periods in the academic year--January, May or August. Most schools offer one credit hour per week for the seminar experience.

LEADERSHIP 2000: ACCESS YOUR FUTURE .

This is a two-week seminar that introduces students to leaders in the public, private and non-profit sectors. Students will have the opportunity to question and be challenged by guest speakers who will address topics of current interest in various fields.

GLOBAL VILLAGE: WORLD POLITICS AND ECONOMICS

This two-week seminar will provide an overview of United States international relations and foreign policy in the post cold war era. It will help students to understand America's political, economic and environmental interdependence with the world population, as well as foster an understanding of different societies and cultures.

INSIDE WASHINGTON: CONGRESS AND THE PRESIDENCY

This seminar is a perfect complement to either Global Village or Leadership 2000. A one-week seminar, it is a close-up introduction to the institutional and political relationships between the White House House and the Congress and their impact on the policy making process.

INSIDE WASHINGTON: POLITICS AND THE MEDIA

Also a one-week seminar that can be taken along with Global Village or Leadership 2000, this is an intimate introduction to the impact of the media on political issues that influence national and international decision making.

WOMEN AS LEADERS

The Washington Center and Sears, Roebuck and Co., are joint sponsors of this annual seminar. Two hundred women from across the United States are chosen to participate every May. The seminar will include workshops on various topics relating to women in leadership, lectures by nationally prominent female leaders, the "Mentor for a Day" program and intensive small group discussions.

INSIDE WASHINGTON: THE ARTS AND CULTURAL POLICY

This one-week seminar introduces students to the nation's capital in a unique way. Participants will attend plays and musical events, visit museums and explore policy issues affecting the nation's agenda towards the fine arts.

LEADERSHIP FOR AMERICA'S CITIES

A one-week academic seminar for college students interested in a career in municipal government. This program will enable a select group of outstanding college students from across the United States the opportunity to meet municipal leaders and study the major issues affecting America's cities. This program is in cooperation with the National League of Cities.

CAMPAIGN '96

During presidential election years, The Washington Center offers special seminars that center on the presidential election process. The seminars take place on-site at the Democratic and Republican national conventions and at the presidential inauguration in Washington.

May 3, 1994

The Honorable Bob Dole United States Senate Washington, DC 20510 1601

Dear Senator Dole:

Harry S. Truman once said, "In periods where there is no leadership, society stands still"

The Washington Center for Internships and Academic Seminars is an independent, non-profit, educational organization founded in 1975. Its mission is to utilize the resources of the nation's capital to provide participatory learning experiences in order to enbance students' academic, civic, and professional development. In this way, The Washington Center seeks to promote future leadership for the public, private, and non-profit sectors of our society.

As one of our country's leaders, you are aware that nothing is more critical and relevant to solving the nation's challenging issues than the development of leadership. We take this opportunity to thank you for your continued support of The Washington Center's leadership programs. Your past support through various means such as speaking to our interns, providing them internships in your office, hiring our former interns, writing letters of endorsement, or being on one of The Washington Center's Advisory Committees has enabled The Washington Center to provide internships and other academic programs for over 20,000 college students from over 750 colleges and universities since 1975. During these years, 430 students from Kansas have participated in our programs from such outstanding institutions as the University of Kansas and Kansas State University.

We request that you agree to continue your support by being a member of The Washington Center's Honorary Congressional Advisory Committee for the Third Decade Campaign. As a member of this committee, you will be recognized by your constituents in the corporate, education, and private sector communities as a supporter of the Center's continuing efforts to develop future leaders.

As an academic and administrative complement to higher education institutions providing experiential education programs, The Washington Center's goals are to offer students from diverse cultural and economic backgrounds exposure to national and international institutions, leaders, and issues that will enhance their leadership skills and encourage their academic, personal, professional, and civic development. By providing an opportunity for students to develop leadership skills, The Washington Center will be able to help this country address the increasing complex leadership responsibilities that it will face in the future.

In order for The Washington Center to serve the higher education institutions and their students through outstanding experiential educational programs, it is imperative to improve and expand upon the existing programs and services of The Washington Center, ensure quality housing for its participants, and develop a secure financial foundation. This goal can be achieved through the Third Decade Campaign's efforts to raise $5 million. This Campaign will be solely funded by the private sector with individual, corporate and foundation support.

Under the leadership of the Third Decade Campaign's Co-chairman, William C. Ferguson, Chairman, NYNEX, (additional Co-chair to be named), and our Board of Directors, The Washington Center is well poised to meet the new and exciting challenges that lie ahead. In addition to other purposes, the Campaign will fund a state-of-the art auditorium equipped with telecommunication equipment that will enable thousands of your constituents and others to see and hear you and other leaders speak about issues of national and international importance.

Therefore, Senator Dole, I would appreciate it if you would send me a letter indicating your interest in becoming a member of The Washington Center's Honorary Congressional Advisory Committee for the Third Decade Campaign. By doing this you agree to join other Members of Congress in support of the Campaign's mission to continue providing leadership development programs that will enable future leaders to meet the challenges they will face, and thereby benefit the nation as a whole. Thank you.

Sincerely,

William M. Burke

Re:

This morning I talked with Sheila Burke about scheduling Senator Dole for a luncheon with the Washington Center for Academic Internships and Scholarships. She indicated that Senator Dole would be able to attend a luncheon and that I should contact you with the basic information in order to secure a date. (Senator Dole has agreed to serve as Honorary Co-chair, along with Congressman Gephardt, of the Washington Center's current fundraising campaign. I serve as chair of the board of the Washington Center.)

We are attempting to arrange a luncheon with corporate representatives during the third week of July. The Washington Center and Congressman Gephardt will work around Senator Dole's schedule.

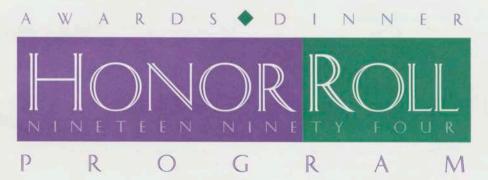

Senator Dole would be expected to stop by the luncheon (and, of course, he's welcome and encouraged to stay throughout) and make a few comments about the work of the Washington Center. Sheila has the information on the Center and the list of interns from the Center who have worked in Senator Dole's office.

I will attempt to call you Monday. If you wish to reach me, my number is 202-336-7904. If I'm not available when you call, please feel free to discuss this matter with Sue Savary on my staff.

Thank you for your cooperation!

1994 HONOR ROLL AWARDS DINNER

Wednesday, March 23, 1994
6:30 p.m. Reception • 7:30-9:30 p.m. Dinner and Program
Hyatt Regency Hotel on Capitol Hill
Washington, D.C.

The annual Honor Roll Awards Dinner recognizes individuals and institutions in the fields of business, education, and public service for their outstanding contributions to education and to the continuing success of The Washington Center.

ounded by William Michael and Sheila McRevey Burke in 1975,
The Washington Center is the largest independent educational organization in Washington, D.C. to offer internships and seminars to college students from all disciplines for academic credit. The Center enables more than 750 colleges and universities nationwide to extend their campuses to the nation's capital. Over 20,000 students have benefited from participation in this exceptional program which emphasizes leadership development, civic awareness and public service.

Dear Friends,

Once again we meet to honor those individuals in public service, business and education who have played an important role in the continuing growth and success of The Washington Center. However, we not only pay tribute to them this evening, but to the many people seated throughout the room who share a commitment to our goals and mission.

We are about to begin our twentieth year as an educational organization that affords college students the opportunity to step out of their classrooms and experience the world as they will know it after graduation. While in Washington, they gain professional work experience, establish professional contacts, investigate career options and share their hopes and dreams for the future with other students from all over the country. But most importantly, they experience a personal growth that is ultimately responsible for their becoming the leaders of tomorrow.

A recent survey revealed that our alumni feel that their Washington Center experiences were among the most important in their academic pursuit. Others have indicated that no other single experience contributed more to their upward career movement. We now have in place an active alumni association with regional chapters. The Washington, D.C. Chapter will launch a mentor program this summer which will match up area alumni with current interns.

This May, "Women as Leaders" celebrates its tenth anniversary. Two hundred of the nation's most promising college leaders will gather in Washington to celebrate the achievements of women and learn more about themselves as individuals and potential future leaders. This January we enjoyed record breaking attendance at our seminars. The Minority Internships in Congress program has created great interest among our colleges and universities as well as congressional offices. A new one-week seminar in August will introduce students to the arts scene in the nation's capital from a variety of perspectives. As you can see, The Washington Center continues to expand and provide quality, innovative programming with a wide range of interests and topics.

On behalf of the board of directors and staff members, thank you for your continued involvement in The Washington Center. Together, we are playing a role in developing the future leadership of our society.

1994 HONOR ROLL EDUCATION AWARD

Furman University John E. Johns President

Furman University is one of the oldest colleges in South Carolina. Founded in 1826 by South Carolina Baptists, it is committed to the liberal arts as the best preparation young men and women can have for rewarding, meaningful lives. The University's nearly 2,500 students come from a wide range of backgrounds, from 41 states and 22 foreign countries. To meet individual needs, the academic program includes such features as foreign study, independent study, interdisciplinary courses and career internships.

Because of its commitment to experiential education and a belief in The Washington Center and its mission. Furman University has provided its students with the opportunity to apply their in-class learning to a working experience in Washington, D.C., since 1978. Furman students are widely sought after when it comes to placement sites and have been instrumental in sustaining the reputation The Center has gained for its high calibre of interns.

Furman alumni have distinguished themselves all over the world, with one of its most notable graduates being Secretary of Education Richard Riley. The Washington Center is very proud of its long standing relationship with Furman University and looks forward to continuing to serve its student body.

1994 HONOR ROLL PUBLIC SERVICE AWARD

The Honorable Dan Coats
United States Senator—Indiana

Dan Coats began his political career as district representative to then Congressman Dan Quayle in 1977 where he remained until he was elected to the U.S. House of Representatives, in 1980. He was originally appointed to the U.S. Senate in 1988 and won the election to complete his appointed term in 1990 by the largest margin of any appointed Senator in Indiana history. In 1992, he was elected to serve a full six-year term in the U.S. Senate.

A member of the Armed Services Committee and the Labor and Human Resources Committee, Coats is active in shaping America's defense, education and health care policies. In addition, he is the ranking Republican on the Labor Subcommittee on Children, Families, Drugs and Alcoholism and the Armed Services Subcommittee on Defense Technology, Acquisition and Industrial Base. As part of his legislative agenda to reform Congress, Coats has introduced a measure requiring term limits for Representatives and Senators, a bill he has pledged to apply to his own service in Congress. Making health care affordable and accessible for all Americans is also a central focus of Coats' legislative efforts.

After graduating from Wheaton College, he served for two years with the U.S. Army. He then worked as a full-time legal intern while attending Indiana University School of Law at night and serving as Associate Editor of the Law Review. Graduating Cum Laude, he then began his career as an attorney in Fort Wayne.

1994 HONOR ROLL PUBLIC SERVICE AWARD

The Honorable William D. Ford U.S. Representative—Michigan

William D. Ford represents the 13th Congressional District in southeastern Michigan and resides in Ypsilanti Township. Since 1992, he has been chairman of the House Education and Labor Committee, with jurisdiction over those two federal departments as well as a variety of human service programs such as Head Start and other initiatives for children and senior citizens. Representative Ford has helped write every piece of federal education legislation since 1965. He is a strong proponent of the administration's direct student loan program and National Service Plan.

A strong supporter of the working people, he is the author of the Family and Medical Leave Act and worked for 14 years for passage of the Worker Adjustment and Retraining Notification Act. Ford is a past chairman of the Post Office and Civil Service Committee and is a sponsor of the president's health reform bill.

A graduate of the University of Denver where he earned his B.S. and J.D. degrees, he served in the U.S. Navy during the Second World War and in the U.S. Air Force Reserve during the Korean Conflict. All of Michigan's major universities have awarded him honorary doctorates. He was elected to the U.S. House of Representatives in 1964 and has recently announced his retirement at the end of this term.

1994 HONOR ROLL BUSINESS AWARD

Sears, Roebuck and Co.
Paula Banks
President and Executive Director
The Sears, Roebuck Foundation
Director of Community Relations
Sears, Roebuck and Co

For the past two years, Sears has served as the exclusive sponsor of The Washington Center's "Women as Leaders" Seminar. The company provides program and housing costs to all participants in this program. Paula Banks, president and executive director of The Sears Roebuck Foundation and director of community relations for Sears, has been instrumental in the success of this program.

As head of the Sears Roebuck Foundation, she directs the philanthropic umbrella of the corporation. The Foundation is funded by Sears principal groups: Sears Merchandise Group, Allstate Insurance Group and Homart Development Co. In her capacity as director of community relations for the corporation and Sears Merchandise Group, Banks is responsible for identifying appropriate ways for Sears to demonstrate its support of communities, including the development of national programs that strengthen the corporation's presence across the nation. These programs address critical concerns and must also complement and extend Sears local community relations efforts and national marketing programs. PROGRAM OFFERINGS

In addition to the general internship offerings, The Washington Center has demonstrated its commitment to minority issues, volunteerism, public service and leadership through its innovative programming.

MINORITY INITIATIVES

The Washington Center, recognizing the need to increase minority representation in leadership positions in the government, business and non-profit sectors, developed the Minority Leaders Fellowship Program, which will prepare outstanding minority students to assume their future roles as leaders of our country. Through the Minorities in Congress scholarship program, students interested in government and public service as a profession can gain first-hand experience in this field by interning in congressional offices on Capitol Hill. These internships will provide a comprehensive training and educational experience that will serve as a stepping stone for a career in government.

INDEPENDENT SECTOR AND ENVIRONMENTAL INTERNSHIP PROGRAMS

In the Independent Sector Program, students are placed as interns with senior level managers and executives in foundations and non-profit organizations in D.C., where they are exposed to social issues such as literacy, poverty, homelessness, the handicapped, AIDS and the elderly. The program offers a comprehensive approach to the study of philanthropy, and not only cultivates the leadership skills of the participants, but deepens their interest and commitment to civic affairs. The Environmental Internship Program, run in conjunction with environmental agencies and organizations, offers students the opportunity to work in one of a number of different environmental areas depending on the student's interests and academic background. All of these programs empower students to enrich the communities they return to serve.

COLLEGE PLUS ONE PROGRAM

The mission of the College Plus One Program is to provide internship opportunities and career development training for recent college graduates. Participants will have a twelve-week interim professional work experience prior to formal pursuit of graduate/professional education or a chosen career path. This is an excellent chance for them to explore career opportunities, obtain some practical experience in a chosen field, prepare for advanced graduate or professional study or simply do something different and exciting before going on to another endeavor.

ACADEMIC SEMINARS

Academic Seminars are programs (ranging from one to three weeks) that combine lectures, workshops, panel discussions, site visits, briefings, informational interviews and, in some cases, a career development track. Seminars are scheduled during typical "break" periods in the academic year— January, May or August. Most schools offer one credit hour per week for the seminar experience.

LEADERSHIP 2000

This is a two-week seminar that introduces students to leaders in the public, private and nonprofit sectors. Students will have the opportunity to question and be challenged by guest speakers who will address topics of current interest in various fields.

GLOBAL VILLAGE: WORLD POLITICS AND ECONOMICS

This two-week seminar will provide an overview of United States international relations and foreign policy in the post cold war era. It will help students to understand America's political, economic and environmental interdependence with the world population, as well as foster an understanding of different societies and cultures.

INSIDE WASHINGTON: POLITICS AND THE MEDIA

This seminar is a perfect complement to either Global Village or Leadership 2000. A oneweek seminar, it is an intimate introduction to the impact of the media on political issues that influence national and international decision making.

WOMEN AS LEADERS

The Washington Center and Sears, Roebuck and Co., are joint sponsors of this seminar. Two hundred women from across the United States have been chosen to participate this May. The seminar will include workshops on various topics relating to women in leadership, lectures by nationally prominent female leaders, the "Mentor for a Day" program and intensive small group discussions.

MULTICULTURAL EDUCATION IN AMERICA

As sponsors of this seminar, the Philip Morris Companies, Inc., will give 100 college students from across the country the opportunity to explore issues relating to multicultural education from both a national and local perspective. Students will have an opportunity to see policy-making in action and observe multiculturalism as it is addressed daily in the local schools.

INSIDE WASHINGTON: THE ARTS AND CULTURAL POLICY

This one-week seminar will introduce students to the nation's capital in a unique way. Participants will attend plays and musical events, visit museums and explore policy issues affecting the nation's agenda towards the fine arts.

LEADERSHIP FOR AMERICA'S CITIES

A one-week academic seminar for college students interested in a career in municipal government. This program will enable a select group of outstanding college students from across the United States the opportunity to meet municipal leaders and study the major issues affecting America's cities. This program is in cooperation with the National League of Cities.

CAMPAIGN '96

During presidential election years, The Washington Center offers special seminars that center on the presidential election process. The seminars take place on-site at the Democratic and Republican national conventions and at the presidential inauguration in Washington.
