Dear Bob:

On January 20, 1981, the Republican Party was entrusted with the leadership of America. For the past two and a half years, my Administration has pursued the two paramount goals of peace and prosperity. While much remains to be done, we have made measureable and determined progress toward these goals, and have certainly succeeded in altering the course of government.

I would like to share with you two recent publications which highlight some of our accomplishments to date. They are intended to describe the steps which we are taking to restore America's prosperity, and to provide an outline of our peace initiatives, the threats to America's peace, and our plan for reducing those dangers.

These past two years have indeed been a new beginning. The task before us is critical but, working together with resolve, we can secure a safe, peaceful and prosperous future.

Sincerely,
