"Dear Mom and Dad"

Another week started and only four more to go before this term ends. I'm still passing all my courses and I've been promoted from 1st Lieutenant to Company Commander which is high as I can go. It means a little extra work but it does go on my service record so it might be of some value to me before I get out of the Army.

I saw Bill Bunt for a few hours Saturday night and we are planning our meeting each other this weekend. He gets his commission in about 2 months so he's doing all right for himself.

I received the candy Thursday and it was as good as ever. I still haven't gotten the telegram that Dad was supposed to have sent but it will probably turn up one of these days.

What did Norma Jean decide about Cadet Nurses training I haven't heard since she went to Kansas City and I'm rather anxious to find out about it. I haven't heard from Kenny so I don't know what he's been doing or what he has found out about his future in the Army.

I guess Russell hasn't much competition in basketball this season. Our section won its game Saturday by a score of 13 to 7. The fellows we played against were from 6' 5" to 6' 1" tall so we had a hard time beating them because of their height.

Maybe you and Dad can figure out the best way for me to get home ~~over~~ during my 7 day furlough. School ends March 5 so we should be on our way home March 6. There is a chance that we will have 10 days instead of 7, which would give me 5 or 6 days at home.

Payday is tomorrow so I've something to look forward to.

Class is over so I'd better stop!

Love
